SOVIET CHECKS NAZIS NORTH OF STALINGRAD

Germans Turn to Small Scale Attacks in Volga City in 52nd Day of Siege.

By The Associated Press

Soviet headquarters reported today the Red armies had thrown the German counter-attack in the 40-mile barrier south of Stalingrad, while on the Volga metropolis the Germans turned back small-scale attacks by Nazi tanks and infantry.

The 52nd day of siege, Soviet headquarters, cited operations inside the city for the first time in five days, and reported new gains and asserted Nazi bombers and fighters bombers were smashing enemy pillboxes and artillery emplacements.

In Stalingrad, infantry and tank formations broke stubborn German resistance offered in factory houses and barricades, and pushed deeply into the northern district of the city.

Counter attacks of relief were described as sanguinary losses inflicted on the enemy."

Dispatches said the gigantic struggle had waned to an artillery situation and reported German burial parties were busily clearing the battlefield approaches to a northwestern section of the great Stalingrad area—where the Nazi assault failed to crack the backbone of Russian defense.

Local Battles Continue

Battles of local importance raged, the Red army headquarters announced, but it was evident that for the moment at least the German storm had subsided.

In its mid-day communique, the Soviet command reported that Russian troops repulsed several German attacks on Stalingrad's northern outskirts overnight and wiped out a force of two German battalions.

The heaviest fighting apparently raged on the German left flank above the city, where Marshal Semeon Timosnenko has been hurriedly driving a series of counter-attacks into the Nazi protective flank.

Some 300 Nazis were killed in the fighting in that sector, Russian headquarters said, and Soviet troops routed two German infantry companies attempting to reinforce that ground.

Little change was noted on the Nazi Caucasus front, along the Black sea coast below Novorossisk and in the Mozdok sector 40-odd miles north of the Grozny oil fields.

On the central front, residents of Moscow marked the first anniversary of the Soviet capital's greatest crisis.

Nazis Thrown Back

It was on the morning of October 15, 1941 that Moscow was being battered under a tempest of German land and air attacks, and capture of the city appeared imminent. Today the Nazis are reported on their heels behind Mozhaisk, hemmed by Red army

FORMER MARION MAN ADVANCED BY NAVY

Henry E. Keller Promoted to Lieutenant Commander.

Advance of a former Marion man from a seaman in the United States navy to the rank of lieutenant commander assigned to the Pacific fleet has been reported.

Henry E. Keller, known in boyhood as "Harry" Keller and as "Hubby" Keller to his fellow players on the old semi-pro baseball team, Hogan's Heroes, wrote of his advancement in a letter received yesterday by his brother, Leo Keller of 528 Fordice.

He is one of the few Marion area men who have been advanced to the high rank from the ranks of enlisted personnel.

In Navy Since 1908

Commander Keller, a native of Marion, enlisted in the navy on June 3, 1908 in Denver, Colo., after attending Marion where he had been employed by the Huber Mfg. Co. He left here with the intention of enlisting after he had heard about the county seat's advantages of interest.

After his "boot" training he was assigned to the Asiatic fleet and for years was in service in the territory to which he is now assigned as a lieutenant commander. For about 10 years he was on submarine duty.

When World War I ended he was recommended for advancement to the rank of lieutenant command-

War Relief Agencies In United War Chest List

Pictured above is the poster used to raise funds to help prisoners of war. The campaign is sponsored by the War Prisoners' Aid of the World Alliance of Young Men's Christian association, a neutral organization already at work in more than 600 war prison camps throughout the world.

They are too young to know where America is, but American funds come to their rescue when their homes are destroyed. The British War Relief society is largly responsible for the operation of nearly 400 hostels for children and the aged.

Eight Organizations Formed To Aid War Sufferers, Will Share Money Raised in County Campaign.

This is the first of a series of articles on the agencies incorporated in the Marion County United War Chest campaign to begin Monday. It is published to acquaint Marion county residents with activities of the organizations to share in proceeds of the drive. This article concerns agencies other than those active within Marion county.

Eight large organizations, born of the war and existing solely to help ease the hardships resulting from the war, are among the agencies to share in the $104,361.73 goal of the Marion County United War Chest drive to get underway Monday night.

More than half of the money for these eight will go to the USO which needs little or no introduction to Marion county residents, because they supported it generously last year and are acquainted with its broad program of comfort, cheer and recreation among the nation's armed forces. USO is in the budget for $10,196.48 or $9.77 of each $100 of the total goal.

The other agencies are British War Relief and Chinese War Relief, each to get $2,230.48; Polish War Relief, $637.28; Greek War Relief, $1,911.84; Russian War Relief, $1,752.52; Dutch Queen Wilhelmina Fund, $159.32; War Prisoners' Aid, $471.27.

All Honor Members

The USO (United Service Organizations) counts as its members every person in the fighting uniforms of Uncle Sam. It maintains more than 400 clubhouses at the thresholds of camps and training stations where men in the service may turn, in off-duty hours, for wholesome and cheering recreation and entertainment. It has hundreds of other units set up on a smaller scale than clubhouses, reaching nearly 200 communities in 48 states and extending from Alaska to Hawaii and thence to the Canal Zone and bases in the Caribbean. The USO centers together attract as many as 1,000,000 visitors a day.

The USO enlistment drive [illegible] from the personnel of the six agencies that joined forces to make the USO possible. They are the Young Men's Christian associations, the National Catholic Community Service, the Salvation Army, the Young Women's Christian associations, the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers Aid association.

DRAFT TO CALL 1,100,000 BY FIRST OF YEAR

Most Will Come from Those Having Parents or Wife Only as Dependents.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—One million one hundred thousand more men will have to be drafted by Jan. 1, Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey testified today in support of legislation to draft 18 and 19-year-olds.

Most of these 1,100,000, he told the house military committee will come from the group of men having secondary dependents such as parents, and those having a wife only. The rest would be men with no dependents.

Hershey estimated that dropping the minimum draft age from 20 to 18 would make available 1,500,000 "of what is the best of our manpower."

He explained to the committee that after Jan. 1 selective service must look for its manpower needs to the teen-age group, to men employed in agriculture and essential industry and to the group having dependents.

Induction Rate Increases

Explaining the rapid increase in the induction rate, General Hersney said that during the first six months of this year inductions were at the rate of about 200,000 monthly, increased to more than 300,000 monthly during the third quarter, would be 400,000 this month and approximately 450,000 in November and in December.

The rapid pace of hearings, by the house and senate military committees, indicated they might be finished tonight. Continuance of such a gait could mean that high school students might be in the army by Christmas.

Even if the draft age is lowered quickly, Hershey explained, this hardly would affect the draft of married men before December, since November quotas already have been made and are being filled by local boards.

Beginning with the December quotas, he said, "the great majority" of inductees in the following three or four months would be those in the teen ages, but thereafter selective service again would face the necessity of calling men with secondary dependents and wives only.

Hershey said lowering the draft age would be more beneficial to agriculture than to industry, because more of the 18-19 class are engaged in industry and would be drafted in the place of older men now going from farms.

Marriage Date Important

Asserting that so far as selective service was concerned a man married after last Dec. 8, when Pearl Harbor was attacked, isn't married, Hershey told the committee.

"This country and you will demand in the not distant future that something besides dependency or alleged dependency be the measure" for deferment.

"We're coming to the point where we are going to have to take men from places where they don't need them, and leave them in places where they do need them."

Military committees of both houses rushed forward today with separate hearings on legislation to put uniforms on the 18-19 year old class. There was a possibility

$500 for Plasma Bank Voted by Hospital Board

Action Taken After Dr. Mouser Explains Need; Advantages Over Blood Bank Pointed Out.

The proposed establishment of a plasma bank for use at the Marion City hospital was presented by Dr. Harold K. Mouser at the first meeting of the 1942-43 season for members of the Woman's Board of the Marion City Hospital yesterday at the Country club. Following Dr. Mouser's talk the board voted a contribution of $500 for the establishment of the bank.

In discussing the proposed plasma bank today, Dr. Mouser, with whom the idea originated several months ago, emphasized that the establishment of such a bank here would not take place immediately, in that it will probably take some time," he stated, because of lack of materials and equipment. However, he pointed out, there is still the need for some time, a fund for such an addition to the hospital here.

The proposed bank has the whole-hearted endorsement of the physical directors of Marion and other groups and individuals with whom Dr. Mouser has discussed the idea, which has been emphasized by the wartime use of plasma and blood banks.

In discussing the practicability of establishing a plasma instead of a blood bank at the City hospital, Dr. Mouser explained that in a hospital of this size the use of plasma would answer the need in practically all cases and would serve the purpose until blood donors could be obtained for extreme cases. In 90 per cent of cases where transfusions are necessary plasma will answer the purpose. Another feature, he explained, is the question of storage and deterioration in the storage of whole blood, which, he stated, can only be preserved for a period of from 20 to 30 days in large hospitals, where there are many transfusions stored [illegible] is kept in small [illegible] can be [illegible]

Final Warning Issued on Rent Registration

Marion city and county landlords who have not returned their federal rent control registration blanks to the area office at 301 West Center street by Friday afternoon, will be liable to a fine of $5,000 and a year's imprisonment.

The final warning came today from the area director, John K. Bartram, who indicated that although there are thousands of landlords who have registered, there probably are many who have failed to conform with the federal regulations.

TAX DEADLINE SET

Tuesday, Oct. 20 is the deadline for payment of personal taxes, Marion Hinkle county treasurer, announced today. To date the payments have been coming very slowly, the treasurer stated.

SCRAP DRIVE NEAR FINISH

Two Days Left for Marion County To Register High Mark.

Only two days remain to "get in the scrap."

Friday and Saturday it will be the responsibility of every man, woman and child in the city and county to get every last bit of scrap out of homes and business places and off the farms onto the junk heaps at the schools.

Scrap given after Saturday can not be counted in Marion county's report of participation in the nationwide drive sponsored by the newspapers of the country.

17 Tons Yesterday

Seventeen tons of scrap were received yesterday at the county's three scrapyards.

Call the nearest school if you live in the city's residential area or out in the county and have more scrap to give.

If you are in the downtown area, call 4293, Harding High school, or 5118, St. Mary Parochial school.

There can be no more important job for Marion county residents in the next two days than "getting in the scrap."

Scrap may save the life of a husband, a son, a brother, a dear friend who is now in the armed services. Without scrap the country's producers of war machinery can not turn out the arms that American men must have to win the war.

Most Important

Searching the attic, the basement, the far corners of a farm, for the last little bit of scrap is the most important job any

U. S. JURY CONVICTS MARION RESIDENT

Fails To Report at Camp for Conscientious Objectors.

Donald R. Berry, 30, of Marion, was found guilty today of failing to report at a conscientious objectors camp in Elmira, N. Y., by a federal court jury in Toledo, The Associated Press reported.

Berry's home, according to records of Draft Board 2, with which he registered in October of 1940, is at 238 West Columbia street.

He is one of 10 members of the Jehovah's Witnesses who are on trial in the federal court at Toledo for violations of the selective service act. Fred H. Seeger Jr., 24, of Port Clinton, was convicted of failing to report for induction. Seeger said he was an ordained minister.

Sentencing Delayed

Assistant U. S. Attorney Gerald P. Openlander who is in charge of prosecuting the 10 men, said at noon today in a telephone communication with The Star that sentences will not be passed until all are tried, probably some time next week, and that in the meantime the convicted men will be held in custody.

The changes were made under General Order No. 21 of the office of defense transportation. The company must keep complete records of all operations and OPT inspectors will check their records to make certain the mileage reduction orders are obeyed.

Required Percentage

Another part of the office of defense transportation program requires that the buses be used at 40 per cent of capacity. Unless operations here show that this percentage is averaged, Marion faces the possibility of having some of its buses seized and taken to other cities where greater use of the vehicles could be made by war workers, company officials explained.

Only two of the six bus routes in the city will remain unchanged under the revised schedule beginning tomorrow. These are the North loop, which is served every 20 minutes, and the East Center street bus, which operates every 10 minutes until 8 p. m. and then on a 15-minute schedule. The 10-minute service is extended to 10 p. m. on Friday nights.

The new West Center street loop will be as follows:

Leave courthouse going west on Center street to Davids, south on Davids to Woodrow, west on Woodrow to Uneaphet, south on Uneaphet to Bellefontaine avenue east on Bellefontaine avenue to Davids street, north on Davids street back to downtown district. The sections dropped on this route are on West Center street from Davids street west to Fire, on Bennett street from Fire to Davids, on Woodrow avenue from Uneaphet to Barks, Barks from Woodrow to Sheridan road and Sheridan road from Barks to Bellefontaine avenue. This loop operates every 10 minutes up to 8 p. m. and then every 15 minutes. On Friday nights the 10-minute service continues until 10 p. m.

RUSSIA ASKS QUICK ACTION

Stalin Proposes Immediate Punishment of Nazis Guilty for War Crimes.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 The Russian government, contributing Premier Stalin's view on punishment of axis war leaders, proposed today that a special tribunal undertake at once to punish "any one of the leaders of Fascist Germany who, in the course of the war, has fallen into the hands of states fighting against Hitlerite Germany."

Rudolf Hess seemed to be the most important if not the only captive axis adherent falling in the category of prisoners against whom immediate action was sought by Russia.

Hess, former deputy fuehrer, has been a British prisoner since May 10, 1941, when he parachuted to earth in Scotland, hoping what both Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill later said was an overture to Britain to make peace with Germany and join the pitch in war on Russia. The German attack on Russia started June 22, 1941.

Foe of Communism

(Hess has long been known as a bitter opponent of Communism.)

(The Russian proposal startled London. A British foreign office commentator said that "Hess became our prisoner on May 10, 1941)" and "of course while there were plenty of crimes" to be charged against the Nazi leaders prior to that date the atrocities affecting the Russian people and the majority of those against other European peoples occurred later.

(The commentator also emphasized that the Russian announcement had not been addressed to London and was known here only through broadcasts).

The Russian overture, approved the program outlined by President Roosevelt and went further by reciting names.

Authorities Here Announce Ban on Halloween Pranks

Juveniles and their elders with any plans for Halloween pranks up their sleeves had better think twice before carrying them out in this year of 1942.

Following a conference, Judge Oscar Gast of the juvenile court and Chief of Police Marks have agreed that this is no year for literally turning things upside down for Halloween, and they are asking the juniors and juveniles, on their honor, to cooperate.

"Everybody is busy these days working in vital defense jobs or helping out in some form of war work and have no time to waste getting defatted tires taken care of, washing soap off cars and attending to other repairs which would entail a loss of time and additional work," the officials state.

And what housewife, they ask, racing through her household routine in order to go to the Red Cross Sewing center or the surgical dressing center, the nutrition class or any other vital work center, will have time to wash soap off a window, sweep up corn or rubbish or repair any other damage which might result from a Halloween prank?

Time and materials are too valuable to be wasted this year and any persons caught destroying property, creating a disturbance or becoming a nuisance in the city will be severely dealt with, both Judge Gast and Chief Marks state.

NAVAL UNITS JOIN FIGHT AT GUADALCANAL

Smashing Attack Made on U. S. Positions; Army Air Force Joins Battle.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 The navy announced today that the Japanese have brought up heavy naval units in their apparently all out effort to drive American army and marine forces off of the Solomon Islands despite considerable enemy losses in the last four days.

The enemy's losses in the fight and its preliminary stages, covering a four-day period, were reported by the navy in a communique as being seven ships, including a battleship, damaged and 31 planes shot down, destroyed on the ground or damaged both in actions over the American airfield on Guadalcanal and as a result of American attacks on Japanese bases.

Damage to American forces and installations was disclosed to include that done by an uninterrupted enemy bomber raid on the airfield at Guadalcanal and also the loss of two fighter planes.

Army Air Forces Active

Secretary of War Stimson disclosed today that substantial American army ground and air forces had arrived on Guadalcanal to help the marines defend the Solomon Islands key point against newly-developing Japanese attacks.

The damage done to the Guadalcanal airfield, which had previously been bombarded by Japanese warships, was not disclosed nor was there any exact explanation as to why American fighters in that one instance had failed to take the air to repel the attack.

A communique, following up last night's announcement that the enemy troops on the strategic island had been heavily reinforced, said that United States reinforcements had been landed on October 13, Guadalcanal time, and that although the ships which took them in were attacked by enemy bombers they suffered no damage and unloading operations were accomplished successfully.

Japs Land Oct. 13

The Japanese reinforcements were made on the early morning of October 13, which was yesterday by Guadalcanal time, and the transport force, today's communique noted, was covered not only by destroyers and cruisers, but also by a battleship.

An American aircraft striking group attacked the enemy ships and the communique said reports indicated that three direct hits were made on one transport while two other transports were set afire and were burning when last observed.

The Japanese battleship was damaged in this same United States attack and one enemy fighter plane was shot down.

Such resistance, however, apparently did not deter the enemy in the least and the communique, dated October 15, reported that "other enemy forces including heavy units have been sighted in the vicinity of Guadalcanal."

The communique added, as Stimson had reported at his press conference earlier today, that United States army troops were now fighting shoulder to shoulder with the marine forces in defense of the American positions on Guadalcanal — position which mark the forward limits of the first United States land offensive undertaken in the Pacific.

Japs Use Battleships

In reviewing developments leading up to what the navy called "the current battle in the Guadalcanal area," the communique reported that during the night of October 13-14 the enemy brought up his surface force of battleships, cruisers and destroyers and bombarded the American positions "heavily."

The bombardment was mentioned by the navy last night but the fact that the Jap armada contained battleships had not been reported until today.

Shore batteries which answered the fire of the Japanese warships scored three hits on enemy destroyers.

Stimson reported at his press conference also that army forces now were in the New Hebrides

LOSES TIRE AS HE NAPS

By The United Press

DALLAS, Tex. — For safety's sake, C. W. McCracken Terrell, pulled over to the side of the road and took a nap when he noticed he was getting sleepy while driving. When he awoke an hour later someone had removed his spare tire and wheel.

THINK — then VOTE

America is engaged in a total war. One of the freedoms being fought for is our constitutional right to elect our own public officials. If we lose this war, we will not long retain this or any of our other freedoms. Help preserve them by voting intelligently on Nov. 3 for officials who have made good. It is not only a privilege, but a patriotic DUTY.

Under Governor BRICKER

'Bombing Raid' To Hit Marion

Mock Attack with Paper Missles To Be Made by Planes Next Tuesday.

Marion will experience its first "bombing" in World war II next Tuesday night when approximately nine planes will swoop down on the city and shower 400 "bombs" on the city. No time has been officially announced for the raid, but it will take place before dark, it was stated today by Paul Ruhlman, chief air warden.

Details of the raid, in which approximately 350 air raid wardens and an equal number of other persons trained for some form of defense, will take part, are being worked out by the Marion County Civilian Defense Council, headed by W. R. Martin. The "bombing" will be done by the Civilian Air Patrol headed by A. A. "Doc" Freeman who is being assisted by William R. Reichenstein. Mr. Ruhlman is chief of the air raid wardens.

No Alert Call.

There will be no alert sounded, it is planned, and all departments of the civilian defense will mobilize about 45 minutes before the "raid."

The "bombs" will be harmless and will have attached to them "incidents" designating what type of a bomb they are. There will be at least half a dozen types of "incidents," Mr. Ruhlman states.

Residents are asked to remain indoors and to take the raid seriously. Should any citizen find a "bomb" they are asked to act as though it were a real raid and get it to their air raid warden as quickly as possible. The "bombs" will be dropped from a height of about 600 feet by planes from Marion, Bucyrus, Galion and Mansfield. The motorcycle unit will warn incoming traffic to the city that "Marion is being bombed" and ask motorists to cooperate. While the "bombs" are harmless, all persons are asked to cooperate by remaining indoors during the raid. This is not a blackout, but probably will be the last general mobilization before a blackout is staged, Mr. Ruhlman stated. Application has been made and a questionnaire returned to headquarters in Columbus for a date for staging a blackout in the city.

Two in Rural Area.

In addition to the "raid" in Marion, one plane will circle over LaRue and Prospect to 'drop "bombs." The way the "raid" will be conducted there has been left to the defense groups in the two places.

Organization of a 7th air raid district comprising the uptown business district has been effected, Mr. Ruhlman announced today. E. G. Haight is captain and 30 wardens have collected information from each business place as to how they may wire to handle the lighting situation in the blackout. Five different options have been submitted for this part of the blackout. Mr. Haight is being assisted by Ira Salter, night merchant police.

WAR SPEEDS COAL MINING

Operations Stepped Up To Meet Needs of Factories As Well As Home Heating.

By International News Service

[illegible]SBURG, Pa.,—Production of Pennsylvania anthracite is steadily increasing to meet the needs of vital war industries throughout eastern United [illegible]

[illegible] of the trend was [illegible]t of Solid Fuels Coordinator Harold L. Ickes that during the third week in September [illegible] production in the state [illegible]257,000 tons, an increase [illegible] tons over the preceding week and 74,000 tons over the corresponding week last year.

[illegible] producer of anthracite [illegible]dition,' Pennsylvania also [illegible] millions of tons of river [illegible] is dredged from the [illegible]nna River. This coal, [illegible]ings from the collieries [illegible] coal fields, is screened [illegible]-wheeled barges that [illegible] the river bed from the [illegible]ing thaw until the ice [illegible] operations in the winter [illegible] and in banks that are sometimes six feet deep, the coal [illegible] demand by manufacturers and utilities throughout [illegible] Pennsylvania because it sells for about $4 a ton.

Credit Modern Machinery

Modern equipment is credited with the increased mine production because thousands of miners in the anthracite fields in northeastern Pennsylvania to get jobs in war industries when the Nation's production program mushroomed to meet the needs of the United Nations.

A shortage of skilled miners has become so acute in some sections of the coal fields that National Selective Service officials were prompted to suggest to local draft boards that they give serious consideration to the fact that a miner whose induction was imminent might better serve the Nation in the mines than in the armed forces.

Biggest reason why anthracite production failed to skyrocket as it did during World War I, when it established a record of approximately 100,000,000 tons in one year, is the use of other fuels, especially oil.

See Increased Consumption

However, because of Ickes' order reducing the amount of fuel oil that can be delivered to consumers, State Mining officials expect that an increased consumption of hard coal by some onwers will further boost the production total. Lack of transportation may retard deliveries, but State Secretary of Commerce Mark S. James has urged consumers to stock up early.

Anthracite production during the last three years has hovered around 51,000,000 tons annually and only in 1938 did it drop below that.

When the depression swept the nation in 1930, one of the first to feel the blow was the hard coal miner. Most of the coal is used by industry and when business was crippled by the depression thousands of industries were forced to close their doors throwing not only their own workers out of jobs but causing many mine operators to furlough employes and shut down because coal demands had almost stopped.

Voluntary War Labor

OFFICIALLY, the manpower is going to be worked out on a voluntary basis, unless compulsion becomes necessary. This is President Roosevelt's recommendation.

It is a solution based squarely on realities. Americans never would accept manpower conscription, except in an emergency so serious that survival was at stake.

Loose thinking has made it appear that there is no important difference between drafting a man for the army and drafting a man for war production. Actually, there is the most difference that is possible.

Compulsory labor is slavery. Compulsory military service is one of the highest responsibilities of citizenship; the man or woman serving in the armed forces is honored in that role.

Only two things can bring about failure of national service in war production on a voluntary basis: Inability of the government to exploit the possibilities inherent in it and failure to act on the growing necessity for setting definite goals of war production.

If the United States intents to keep on building everything that comes to mind, on the theory that supply never can catch up to military demand, the manpower shortage never will be handled through voluntary action of individuals; they'll be licked before they make their first move. Let the government take steps to decide what it actually needs, then let it tell the people what they must do to finish the job they have started and thousands of bureaucrats who have no solution for any problem but more bureaucratic authority will die of disappointment.

Americanized Italians

ANNOUNCEMENT that Italians in this country who have not become citizens will no longer be classed as enemy aliens after Oct. 10 is a rebuke to extremists in nationalism.

The United States is composed of all races and nationalities. "America for Americans" is a slogan so widely inclusive that everybody who believes in the American ideal of "Live and let live" can use it in his own behalf.

An American is not merely someone who happened to be born with a certain name, skin of a particular color, or ancestors of a special stock. He is someone who is bound to America by belief in a way of living that has made it possible for Italians, Germans, Spaniards, Englishmen, Irishmen, Negroes, Mongolians and Caucasians all to live together under one flag. Certainly of all Americans no one has more cause to be thankful for the common ideal of their adopted country than Italians who have watched the systematic debasement of their native land by rabid nationalists who sold out Italy's interests to Germany.

Four Cruisers: One Illusion

LOSS of three United States cruisers and the Australian cruiser Canberra in the first stages of action in the Solomons last August shatters the last American illusion about Japanese fighting ability. It has now been demonstrated that there is nothing wrong with Japanese naval shooting, either.

A year ago many Americans firmly believed the Japanese couldn't fly airplanes, hit anything with naval guns, or fight their way out of a paper bag on land. They believed it because they and a succession of bogus observers who were supposed to possess facts wanted to believe it: there was no better reason.

These have not been the only absurd illusions blown to bits by the war. They are typical, however, of the kind of self-deception that made the war possible—self-deception so paralyzing that it enabled Germany and Japan to prepare openly for years to do what they now are doing. More potent than any concealment they could have devised was the self-willed blindness of men intent on deceiving themselves.

FAR FROM GRACEFUL

Doubtless it is the right of a people to produce its own most captious critics, but it was a Pole—the individualistic philosopher Nietzsche—who was responsible for the indictment: "Everything that is ponderous, viscious and pompously clumsy . . . is developed in great variety among Germans."—Washington Star.

News Behind the News

Trend from Defensive Action to Offense Seen in President's Fireside Chat.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Professional politicos in the senate and house, mainly Democrats as well as Republicans, are still grumbling mildly to themselves about the President's fireside chat.

They all seemed to consider it irritating at one point or another. His ruling of the 18-19 year old draft matter just before their election (not his) .... His avoidance of decisive recommendations on man-power .... But, above all, his timing of the speech to blanket a late afternoon announcement of the loss of three cruisers in the Solomons last August.

To me it seemed the opposite. In fact, the soundest political speech of the year. It signified that the most embarrassing vital war matters which the government was going to put off until after election, are to be met straightforwardly.

But, above and beyond that, it showed this government is swinging away from the defensive and into aggressive action.

Gone was the old tone of caution and warning—caution that we must not expect much military action before next year, warning that we must realize we have a war on.

When you couple this with recent administrative steps, you will find the government is taking the offensive in more than mere speech. His appointment of single-headed controls over the confused governmental economic policies and over rubber has strengthened this change of front, and given it substance.

More Than Second Front

Not only that, but the new war guide he offered the people carried a significant suggestion of the imminence of aggressive military action, not restricted to a second front, but in a vaster theater.

The conception which the public has of a "second front" comes mainly from Russia, and her immediate necessities. Stalin has been agitating for invasion of the continent to relieve pressure on his armies.

Mr. Roosevelt avoided use of the term "second front." He said the military plan contemplates diversions for both China and Russia "by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

This could mean a heavy concentration against Rommel in Africa to annihilate him, perhaps a dozen different attacks between Norway and the Mediterranean islands, further stronger advances by MacArthur in the southwest Pacific, the extinction of the last Jap stronghold in the Aleutians (it is now a question of whether they can get out of there before they are bombed to pieces) and perhaps even invasion of Japan eventually through Russia, if Stalin will open those Siberian bombing fields to us.

An intimation that the President is thinking aggressively now in terms of early action is conveyed by the fact that, in the very next breath, he talked of what may happen when the axis begins to collapse.

Move Toward Action

It seems to me the President, not on his trip, but before, reached the decision that the congressional conception of good politics was not very good this time.

While the 18-19 year old draft will not be popular with mothers from a standpoint of self-interest, it will certainly be popular with older persons from the same standpoint. But, regardless of politics, the army says it wants these younger boys, and certainly older men are needed elsewhere to sustain both military and civilian life.

In the man-power matter also, the President merely turned down those of his officials who want to handle it the Hitler way, by an arbitrary draft.

Of politics, there was plenty in the speech, true enough. But as it signifies a swing to action, a move to get off the defensive in spirit and government, and follows many a line critically suggested in this column, I think congressional criticism is petty.

U. S. Manpower Problem

Conscription Proposed as Labor Shortage Remedy.

ALONG time ago when Paul V. McNutt, the New Deal's "white haired boy," was made chairman of the war manpower commission, farsighted observers smiled grimly and said he was being put on the hottest spot in America.

It's beginning to be plain they knew what they were talking about. The manpower slack is being taken up. There are fewer unemployed to be shifted from one place to another. The pinch is beginning to be felt.

It is bad now, and it will be worst next summer when agricultural work is resumed in full force and the production rate in industry is still higher. Meanwhile, the armed services are going to keep right on taking more millions from their jobs.

Already threatened is completion of the triple play that first took control of employes out of the hands of employers and turned it over in large part to the labor unions. Now it may pass into the hands of the war manpower commission. "The employer is about to be separated from his last vestiges of control over labor policy," reported The United States News recently. "President Roosevelt already, by executive order, has told private industry to stop paying double time for work on Sundays and to pay time and one-half for work on certain holidays.... And the war manpower commission is beginning to tell employers that they must get government permission before anyone can be hired or fired." Since this summation, the President has told employers also that they cannot raise or lower wages without government approval.

THE American public, sensing the magnitude of the rising problem of manpower, is eager for an impartial analysis, according to the Gallup poll. It favors study by a counterpart of the Baruch committee that analyzed the rubber crisis.

As early as last March, however, the Gallup poll revealed that three-fifths of the voters of the United States then were willing to have the government, through agencies similar to draft boards, tell every adult in the country what to do in the war effort and require him to do it.

Pending specific authority to draft manpower for war production as well as service in the armed forces, the government has been using persuasion through the machinery of its public employment service. With information obtained through occupational questionnaires answered by draft registrants, employment officials are asking the registrants to make appointments to talk over the possibility of switching to jobs connected more closely to war production than the job they are performing.

"The United States is now moving inch by inch toward conscription of labor under the principle of universal selective service," asserts the Magazine of Wall Street. "While factory workers would be chiefly affected, the principle would be applicable to all civilians. If you hold an essential job of any kind, the government could "freeze" you in it. If you hold a non-essential job, the government could order you to shift to one of its own choice. This is the ultimate and most drastic step in any nation's mobilization of human resources for war. It has long been an established fact in Russia and England, Germany and Japan."

As a buildup for eventual federal control of all manpower, in the belief of H. M. Tremaine, author of the analysis in the Magazine of Wall Street, the President has given the manpower commission full control over the jobs of some 2,300,000 persons on the federal payroll. It can hold these persons where they are, shift them, order them to take jobs in private industry—with or without their consent.

Proportions of the problem are revealed in estimates that at the end of next year the United States will have 10,000,000 men in the armed forces, with 20,000,000 war workers supplying material for them. These figures may be compared to estimates of 5,200,000 fighting men and 17,500,000 workers at the end of this year and 2,000,000 fighting men and only 7,300,000 at the end of last year. In other words, out of a total of 20,000,000 war work jobs, 17,500,000 or more than 87 per cent will have been filled voluntarily by the end of this year, leaving 2,500,000 more to be filled by the end of 1943, without counting in the additional jobs that need to be filled on farms if the United States meets its obligation to make itself the granary as well as the arsenal of democracy.

HOWEVER, the United States has not yet exhausted its labor reserve. As with food during the late depression, the main problem is distribution. New York City has thousands of unemployed. It is estimated there are 4,500,000 persons in the United States who would take jobs if they and the jobs could be brought together.

Furthermore, there is leeway to be gained by longer hours of work for those already employed. Contrary to orthodox union doctrine, the 40-hour basic work week is not a natural law. Men worked longer than that before the New Deal without injury, and are working longer now in the factories of the Axis nations. Furthermore, union rules limiting output of workers would have to be lifted before there could be any reasonable excuse for assuming that production had reached its ceiling unless labor conscription was practiced.

There are some officials in Washington eager to get authority to conscript labor. Some others are just as eager to keep the authority out of bureaucratic hands. Public opinion undoubtedly will cast the final vote, with congressmen and executive officials both waiting till after election day for a showdown.

"A manpower control law, with teeth in it, appears to be in the cards for 1943," concludes United States News. "The reason why is that in war, with the army and navy as large as those being created, there is need for power to mobilize and to assign men in the armed forces. Even without such a law, however, it is regarded as unlikely that the United States will feel such a manpower pinch as that now interfering with Hitler's war effort."

Today and Tomorrow

Need for Roosevelt To Clarify Government-Press Relations in War Seen.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

SOMETIME or other when he can manage to get around to it Mr. Roosevelt might find it useful to clarify his ideas about the relations in this war between the government and the independent press.

It is painfully clear that he is so much annoyed with so many of us that his displeasure, like the rain, falls equally upon the just and the unjust.

Surely this is not going to do anybody much good. We have an independent press in this country, and its faults, which are many and undeniable, will not be corrected by wisecracks.

Newspapermen are human, perhaps all too human, and I cannot help thinking that most of them would respond if they were treated as adult men and not as naughty schoolboys.

It is evident that there is a defect somewhere in the relationship between the President and the press, and I venture to believe that if we look into it enough, we shall find that we are all suffering, the President and the newspapers, for want of a responsible, well-informed and constructive opposition.

President's Argument

Of course, as the President keeps telling them, the commentators do not know nearly so much about everything as he knows about everything. Of course, they frequently hear only part of the story.

Now if there were a responsible and informed opposition, the correspondents would not have to choose between government handouts and their own spasmodic and insufficient private investigations, and editors would be able to analyze and interpret and comment upon an informed debate instead of having to conduct the debate themselves.

What Mr. Roosevelt must not assume, even unconsciously, is that in this vast and complicated struggle he does not need the help of an opposition. He needs it very much. No matter how great his vision and his initiative, they are not sufficient to the immense tasks which have to be done.

Two examples, neither in the realm of typewriter strategy, will prove this.

We have been mobilizing our resources for nearly two and a half years. But the authority of the War Production Board is not yet clearly or adequately implemented nor sufficiently related, as it must become, to military planning.

Tardy Action

More than two years have passed since the country committed itself to a military program which has become greater than any ever undertaken by any nation in all history. Obviously this entailed a profound and universal change in the economic life of the country. But it is only during this month that the administration has organized itself to regulate this transformation, and it has not yet got around to adopting a fiscal program or a system for regulating purchasing power, or a system of national service.

Can it be denied that if there had been a more effective opposition there would have been a surer, a quicker and a more resolute leadership?

There will have to be more criticism. For it is becoming quite evident that owing to the traffic jam which still exists at the White House many urgent matters are stalled way down the line.

The time would come when Mr. Roosevelt could wish that, instead of resenting the critics, he had responded to such grains of truth as may be found in all their chaff.

I looked up and the canopy was over me like a tent, suspension lines taut. Below me was the field, like a well kept lawn. There was no feeling of falling or height, but I was swinging a little, so grabbed the right front and left rear risers, chinning myself to check the oscillation.

If They Could See Me—

We were about 800 feet up. Somebody yelled. It was Lt Rodger Meadows, of Akron O.

"Nobody in Akron would believe I'd ever do this," he said. Same goes for all of us in our home towns, I guess.

An air current hit me at 100 feet. I grabbed the risers, rocked them hard to keep oscillation from setting in again.

Twenty feet up, I looked down, prayed I'd land lightly on that week-old sprained ankle, then suddenly realized I was coming in backwards.

The ground . . .

The Ankle Escapes

I spilled backward, did a complete roll, and never touched the ankle. The chute collapsed, and as I unsnapped the harness, I looked for the next groups already in descent.

Meadows lit fairly easy. Lt. Henry Buchanan, late of Anderson, S. C., came in on a slight knee bend and stood up without a roll. There was a puddle of water off to the right, and Lt Robert Carlson, Utica, N Y., plowed it up like a motorboat.

We started rolling up our chutes to get off the field.

Meet The Paratrooper

And that, with accompanying post mortems, covered the first of five jumps necessary to qualify as a parachute trooper. It took the army four weeks to train us for this landing, which is about two per cent of what a parachutist has to do. The other 98 per cent is fighting the enemy tooth and nail, when encountered, and winning.

What kind of a man does it take to become a paratrooper?

First, without any bouquets, I would say it takes a man who can conquer his fears, grit his teeth and do what's expected of him in any pinch. Like no other soldier, he proves his courage every day of his training.

Second, it takes a man who is original, individual, and who believes he can take command of his own destiny.

Third, it takes a man who has the spirit of a pioneer. There is very little available in the field manual about parachutist tactics. He gets a mission, and it's up to him to accomplish it.

This Is No Picnic

Jumping from a plane is the least of all a combat trooper's worries. The two-mile runs, the half hours with Indian clubs, the 30-foot rope climbs to build arms and shoulders, the trampoline, tumbling until dizzy, and chinning for hours in suspended parachute harness — these were the easy things.

I got my sprained ankle from the mock-up plane, a 30-foot elevated platform on which is mounted a simulated plane door. Every man is set out to jump from it, fall free half the distance to the ground, then be yanked in the harness to get the feel of a chute opening.

Then, there's the shock harness being hoisted 50 feet in the air, hanging head down, then later to 150 feet, each time pulling a rip cord which sends you hurtling 15 feet before the harness checks the fall.

These are just some of the things, which hour after hour unfold before the wearied eyes of the paratrooper in the making.

The paratrooper has no illusions about fear. He doesn't brag that he's never afraid of anything. He is afraid, but he is often afraid of what he sees about him and does what he's asked to do, no matter what it is.

There's one proud bunch of fighting men, and I'm proud to be one of them.

The Author

Capt. Barney Oldfield, first newspaper man to become a parachute trooper, prepared the accompanying story exclusively for Wide World Features. In civilian life Capt. Oldfield was known as the "world's champion" flip reporter, for five straight years reviewing 500 or more films a year for the Nebraska State Journal at Lincoln, Neb. He served a year on the staff of Lt Gen Ben Lear before Pearl Harbor, and when recalled to active service said he wanted to go where it was toughest—and picked the paratroops. He was graduated with the July 1 class at Ft Benning, Ga.

Soldier's Legs Too Long for His Army Trousers

By The Associated Press

RANDOLPH FIELD, TEXAS—Pvt Cecil F Hubbert has the run of the post except that he can't go to the post theater, the post exchange, the restaurant just off the post or any place else where fatigue clothes are banned.

Private Hubbert's dilemma is caused by his lack of pants.

He measures four feet from his hips down. Six feet, five inches tall, he was issued regulation equipment except for the trousers.

He will wear fatigue pants until the quartermaster masters the problem.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PENNEY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

J. C. PENNEY CO., INC.

WITH SAVINGS YOU'LL REMEMBER ALL YEAR!

BIRTHDAYS ARE ONE REASON FOR CELEBRATING

We're celebrating a birthday this month, and we're making quite an occasion of it. We've made a good many friends since this store first opened, and we know they will welcome an opportunity to celebrate with us.

Birthdays are one reason for celebrating. But in times like these, we're likely to forget the many, many other reasons we Americans have for gratitude and celebration.

In spite of wartime pressures, we still have a good many American freedoms that we hardly appreciate enough. We have free choice in every important thing that goes to make up our daily lives.

For example, nobody tells you what to buy, and where to buy it. If you like Penney's, and the goods we sell, and our prices, you may shop with us. If not, you take your money and buy elsewhere. That is just one reason for gratitude and celebration—and it would be a good thing for each of us to stop and consider all of them—and to realize how much we have to fight for!

America's automotive service men are playing an important part in the nation's war effort. It's their job to save the wheels that serve America.

SUPER CHEVROLET SERVICE

The Automotive Mechanic of Yesterday
Is the VICTORY SERVICE MAN of Today

Help him to help you "SAVE THE WHEELS THAT SERVE AMERICA" by getting a skilled service check-up regularly

Take the word of millions.

MORE PEOPLE GO TO CHEVROLET DEALERS FOR SERVICE than to any other dealer organization

Just how important the automotive mechanic's work is to the nation will be clear to all who consider the following facts*:

- Automobiles and trucks form the sole practicable means of transportation for war workers and war materials in many communities throughout America.
- In some sections, 78% to 100% of the workers drive by automobile to vital war plants.
- 2,314 U. S. cities, with a population of 12,524,000, depend on private cars for transportation; 54,000 communities depend entirely on motor vehicles.
- Six out of every ten farms use one car or more; 67% of farm car mileage is necessity driving.
- More than 65.2% of all war plants reporting in Michigan (a typical war production state) depend on trucks to haul their incoming and outgoing freight.
- Trucks haul nearly 100% of the milk supply of most large cities—and 58% of all livestock marketed in the U. S.
- Trucks are the sole transportation system serving our 54,000 communities not reached by railroads.

The automotive mechanic—the trained Chevrolet Victory Service Man—is the lifeguard of America's millions of cars and trucks. Help him to help you and America by getting a skilled service check-up at regular intervals.

The poet-laureate in wartime is more of a reporter than an epic singer. It was Masefield who best told the story of the withdrawal from Dunkerque, in "The Nine Days Wonder," but it was prose. "It is frequently called a masterpiece of journalism.

tax measure now being successfully promoted in congress, but the bill is largely political in nature.

It does not mean Negroes will be automatically allowed to vote in the eight southern states affected. In those states, the primaries are the only important parts of the elections.

Some of the states have laws now, giving political parties the right to fix qualifications of voters in primaries. These laws have been upheld by the supreme court.

Educational and other restrictions can still be applied, and may well be expected in some states, in view of the complaint of southern congressmen that they consider the legislation deliberately offensive.

It can not be passed in the senate in time to affect this election anyway, except in one respect. It will lead northern Negro organizations to believe they have won a victory.

Incidentally, the politicos from one southern state say a local Democratic city boss down there is in favor of the bill because he is "tired of paying the poll tax to get all his Negroes in to vote" in every election.

CROATIA TORN BY REVOLUTION

Puppet Leader Faces Open Revolt as Patriots Battle Ustachi.

By The Associated Press

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 15—The Nazi-created state of Croatia was reported torn by civil strife today, with followers of the powerful peasant leader, Dr. Vladimir Macek, in open revolt against the puppet government of Dr. Ante Pavelic.

Yugoslav sources, who would not permit their names to be used, said an army of about 5,000 well-organized peasants was battling Pavelic's brown-shirted Ustachi—the militia which he organized in emulation of Premier Mussolini's blackshirts.

The revolt added to the complications facing the axis armies of occupation in Yugoslavia, already engaged in bitter strife with the insurgent forces of General Draja Mihailovic, who has been waging guerrilla warfare from the Yugoslav mountains.

Mihailovic was said to be constantly reinforcing his army and the effectiveness of his campaign was demonstrated by official Italian figures reporting that 5,343 Italian soldiers had been killed and 5,490 wounded by the Balkans in the last 10 months.

Advices from Ankara, Turkey, said reports were current there that the Germans would turn over control of Croatia and Slovenia here if the Axis powers continued losing ground. These reports said Germany might also demand control of the Adriatic port of Trieste.

Communist forces in Yugoslavia were reported to have suffered a setback as a result of repeated attacks by insurgent forces, although Free Yugoslav radio said 36 trains had been derailed in Croatia alone in September.

These quarters expressed belief that Croat revolt had been stirred up by the arrest of Macek and five other leaders of the Croatian peasant party for refusal to cooperate with the axis.

News of the revolt followed by two days a German announcement that Pavelic's cabinet had resigned and had been replaced by a new set of ministers pledged to govern according to "Ustachi principles."

Only about one half of one per cent of Iceland is under cultivation.

An accountant at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. in Akron, Waddell enlisted as an apprentice seaman several weeks ago.

Through a series of aptitude tests given the 130 men of his company, he was selected to attend one of the navy's service schools.

He was graduated from Harding High school in 1936. His wife, Mrs. Evelyn Waddell, lives at Caledonia.

WILLKIE REPORTS TO PRESIDENT AFTER WORLD TOUR

Wendell L. Willkie, special emissary of President Roosevelt, completes his 31,000-mile around-the-world tour with his visit at the White House in Washington, where he is shown. Following a 90-minute report to the U. S. Chief Executive, Willkie told the press that his appeals for a second front were the result of military expert opinion obtained abroad. He plans to prepare a written report and take a rest at his Indiana home. Willkie is shown interviewed by newsmen after his conference with the President. (Photophoto)

The Republican leader said he wanted to make "careful, crystal-clear reports to the American people."

He said he had learned at first hand that "a lot of us, including public officials are going to have to stretch our muscles and our minds before we win."

He planned to rest a few days at his home in Indiana before buckling down to work on his reports to the people.

Willkie Back in Capital, Confers with President

Repeats Call for Second Front After Epochal World Tour of War Areas.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Wendell L. Willkie stepped out of the role of personal representative of the President and back into that of private citizen today after ending an epochal circuit of the world and appealing anew for a second front.

From the White House itself, where he reported to President Roosevelt late yesterday on a 31,000-mile tour that took him to fighting fronts in the Middle East, Russia and China, Willkie urged that a second front be established. He had made the same appeal in Moscow.

Yet he told reporters: "In my judgment, Germany will never conquer Russia."

Willkie said he had his own opinion where a second front should be opened, but he was unwilling to name the spot. He based his decision that there should be one, he asserted, on talks with "military men all over the world."

"May I say without boast," he remarked, "that I have had considerable experience in judging recommendations of technical men."

Seated on a tremendous, circular mahogany table in the White House lobby, Willkie asserted with confidence:

"Sure, we're going to win this war. We have the power and the resources on our side."

But he said he was concerned over the rest in human lives and human values and over winning the peace as well as the war.

Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee in 1940, toured 14 countries in 50 days accomplishing "certain things" for the man who beat him at the polls.

In a formal statement, he said he had two other purposes:

1. To "demonstrate to our allies and to a good many neutral countries that there is unity in the United States on the purpose of winning this war." He said nobody had asked him to do it.

2. To find out all he could about the war and how it could be won.

FACTORIES HAVE BIG VOLUME OF ORDERS

Ayers Says It Will Take Eight Months To Meet Demands.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15 — At present production American factories would need nearly eight months to make the durable goods called for by unfilled orders on their books, Economist Leonard P. Ayres said today, observing:

"Probably the existing huge volumes of unfilled orders for durable goods largely account for the shortages and the maldistributions of scarce industrial materials. Any manufacturer who has on his books unfilled orders many times as large as those to which he has been accustomed, must inevitably be chronically worried about how he is going to get the steel, the copper, the brass and the other scarce materials.

"The only way to avoid unlimited competition to secure stocks of the materials that are essential to our effort is through a centrally-controlled system of allocations.

"If each manufacturer could be confident that he would have promptly allocated to him sufficient amounts of the materials he must have in order to make the munitions he has agreed to produce, and if he could know that their prices would not increase, he would no longer be tempted to build up reserves of large and unbalanced inventories."

Other observations by General Ayres in the Cleveland Trust Co's monthly business bulletin:

"Our railroads are carrying more than twice as much freight as they were just before the war began.

"During the past year there has been no real increase in the volume of freight moved by trucks. Probably the movement of freight on the highways is leveling off, and that with the increasing difficulty of replacing trucks and tires these freight movements will progressively decline, this will be highly regrettable.

"Ultimately we shall almost certainly have to have a national service act for the all-out control of manpower and of woman-power. American business will be well advised to prepare for such eventualities. Business could get ready training replacements.

"It is no longer true that we can safely stay merely stepped up versions of peacetime industry into this war. We are now committed to wade into it and we shall have to keep on going deeper and deeper for a long time."

Miss Bechtle And Lt. Richard Fogle Exchange Vows

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE J. BECHTLE of 215 East George street are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Louise to Lt. Richard E. Fogle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Fogle of the Green Camp pike.

The single ring ceremony was read last evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. Henry Maag, pastor of the Prospect Street Methodist church in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The couple were married at the home of the bride's parents before an improvised altar of white baby chrysanthemums and palms. The room was lighted by candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fogle, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, were the only attendants.

For her wedding the bride chose a street length dress of soft gold crepe fashioned with a lace yoke and bracelet length sleeves. Her accessories were in a dark brown shade. She wore a single orchid.

Mrs. Howard Fogle's dress was of soldier blue and she wore a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Brechtle wore pale green and Mrs. Fogle was attired in dark blue. Both were corsages of gardenias.

A small reception followed the ceremony, after which Lt. and Mrs. Fogle left on a short wedding trip.

Mrs. Fogle is a graduate of Harding High school, class of 1939 and Grant Hospital School of Nursing in Columbus. She has been employed as a private duty nurse in Marion.

Lt. Fogle was graduated from Harding High school in 1938 and was employed as a teller at the National City Bank before his induction into the army. He recently received his commission at Officers Training school at Ft. Benning, Ga. He will report there in a few days. Mrs. Fogle will join him later.

Out of town guests were Lt. and Mrs. Robert M. Wills of Colorado Springs, Colo., Lt. William Murphy of Ft. Benning, Ga., Mrs. Lydia McLead of Chicago, Ill. and Miss Betty Watts and Miss Mary Louise Hoover of Columbus.

MRS. GARNER W. COX

MR. AND MRS. ROY SNYDER of 278 Pennsylvania avenue are announcing the marriage of their daughter Jean to Sgt. Garner W. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cox of Bucyrus. The wedding took place Tuesday, July 14 at the Hitching Post at Las Vegas, Nev. with Rev. Bryan L. Bunker reading the double ring service. Witnessing the ceremony were Clara M. Breeze and Mildred Stewart of Las Vegas. For the ceremony Miss Snyder chose a black and yellow dress with black accessories, and wore a single purple throated white orchid.

Announcement of the wedding was made last evening when Mrs. Cox entertained the L. S. D. club and several guests. Miss Esther Rutherford read a letter to the club from Miss Connie Butterworth of Hollywood, Calif., a former club member, and the guests learned of the wedding from an original verse, written by Jackie Marshall of Hollywood and enclosed in Miss Butterworth's letter.

Place favors were small blue and yellow folders holding pictures of the bride and bridegroom taken following the ceremony, and the yellow napkins were inscribed with "Jean and Wutz," in blue letters. Fall flowers decorated the rooms. AGREEMENT ON TAX BILL NEAR Joint Committee Works To Compromise House and Senate Measures.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — A joint congressional committee today appeared heading toward an agreement on a new and untried system of taxation designed to raise $1,750,000,000 a year, part of which would be only "borrowed" from the taxpayers and returned to them after the war.

Although he said house members had not disclosed their attitude, Chairman George (D-Ga) of the senate finance committee expressed confidence that post-war rebates for both individuals and corporations would remain an integral part of the new revenue bill when it is presented for final action.

The joint group planned to wade through a mass of non-controversial amendments before getting down to the chief disputed issues—the 5 per cent victory tax on individual earnings above $624 yearly and senate changes in house-approved corporation rates.

Both proposals involved post-war rebates, as well as current deductions for payments on debts.

The need for a post-war rebate to soften the impact was emphasized by Senator Walsh (D-Mass), another conferee, who told reporters:

"The American people have no idea yet how hard this bill is going to hit them."

Taxpayer John Doe, with a gross income of $2,000 a year, would pay $68.80 a year victory tax. If single, he would have a credit of $17.20. If married, his credit would be $27.52 and if he had one additional dependent it would increase to $30.27.

FIND WAY TO SAVE CRITICAL MATERIALS

Ordnance Officer Reports on Economical Changes.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O. Oct. 15 — By re-designing munitions parts, the war department's Cleveland ordnance district is saving 300 tons of brass, 17,500 tons of steel, 657,000 man hours and $2,500,000 a year.

This was disclosed today by Col. H. M. Reedall, chief of the ordnance district, in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Society for Metals, which is meeting here in conjunction with the National Metal Congress.

Citing the savings as an example of how ways can be found for "doing more with less," he told the meeting of metallurgists:

"You are doing a splendid job, but like all the rest of us in the war, you must do better."

Reedall did not enumerate the parts redesigned by the district.

Weighing only 12 pounds, arm chairs are being made from plastics without the use of metal, having velvet covered seats and backs.

Look Out for Wartime Constipation

Lack of "bulk" one of common causes

Don't be surprised if you feel all bogged down these war days! Look at how you live! Longer hours, harder work, irregular meals—your whole way of living's been upset. Especially eating habits. Meals are apt to be hurried, improperly balanced—and the important matter of bulk neglected.

And lack of "bulk" is one of the common causes of constipation! Medicinal laxatives give only temporary relief because they don't get at the cause.

The answer to this kind of trouble is drinking plenty of water and eating a crisp, golden cereal — KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. For this delicious breakfast food supplies the needed "bulk," corrects the cause. Why not start eating ALL-BRAN yourself? Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

COURT RULING GIVEN IN BARBER ACTION

Holds Lower Judges Must Hear Evidence.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Common pleas judges must consider evidence offered in appeals from decisions of the state board of barber examiners instead of basing decisions solely on testimony introduced at board hearings, the Ohio supreme court holds.

The court so ruled yesterday in the case of nine Youngstown residents charged with violating state barbering regulations.

The tribunal upheld contempt of court convictions of 40 persons charged with violating an anti-picketing injunction granted the United States Gypsum Co. of near Port Clinton Aug. 1, 1941, two weeks before a strike was called by the United Mine Workers of America, district 50.

Forty-four men arrested near the plant Aug. 16 were fined from $15 to $200 in common pleas court and an appeals court upheld all but one of the convictions.

The others appealed on the grounds that failure to serve notice of the injunction violated their constitutional rights. The supreme court dismissed the appeals, ruling no debatable constitutional question was involved.

Waiving of 5-Day Rule Up to Probate Judges

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Any relaxation of the five-day wait stipulation of Ohio marriage law is the responsibility of probate judges, R. H. Markwith, state health director, asserted in regard to criticism by an interdenominational minister's conference.

Pastors meeting at Point Pleasant, W. Va., yesterday condemned the ease with which they said couples could obtain licenses in Ohio without waiting five days as required by law.

Markwith repeated the state's blood test requirement enforced rigidly.

LONGER WEEK OK WITH UMW

Miners Agree on 42-Hour Basis with Overtime Pay - Above 35.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15 - Transition to a six-day week, preparation of demands for increased wages, and the launching of a huge organizing drive were major jobs left by the United Mine Workers convention for its international executive board which remained in session here today.

The 37th UMW convention ended a seven-day session yesterday. In their final session the miners agreed to work a 42-hour week in place of their present 35-hour week in the bituminous industry, with time-and-a-half pay or take-and-a-half (production bars) for the extra day. In anthracite fields districts deal with the problem of additional hours by autonomous negotiations and already have agreed to work 12 Saturdays from Nov. 1 at straight time rates.

The convention approved requests for wage increases which spokesmen termed justified by higher living costs and the better pay of other industries, but because of the uncertain future resulting from the war agreed not to announce any demands until nearer to next March when negotiations with operators open.

UMW President John L. Lewis promised that the UMW would take the lead in organizing "millions" of unorganized workers and expressed a "hope that our statesmen and our leaders of labor will not be inclined to travel too rapidly in the restrictions imposed upon free labor in America."

Lewis announced yesterday the UMW would start an organization drive among 20,000 chemical workers in West Virginia; 50,000 coal-mine supervisory employes and "great segments of agricultural labor."

BUS ROUTES

In line with requirements compelling the company to furnish transportation to war workers where seriously needed, the company announced it will start service Monday at 6:10 a. m. between the courthouse and a group of industries in southwest Marion. The bus will go down State to Delaware avenue, west on Superior to Prospect and down South Prospect street, west on Osgood street to Cheney avenue and north on Cheney avenue to serve the Osgood Co., Commercial Steel Castings Co., Defiance Pressed Steel Co. and the Pollak Steel Co. The number of daily buses to be operated over this route has not yet been determined. Arrangements for the first bus to make the trip were completed this week after Charles Parshall of Marion, an inspector for the public utilities commission, obtained the commission's authority to operate the line, which lies partially outside the city limits. Bus company officials emphasized they will not be permitted to pick up or discharge passengers outside the city limits. All of the stops now contemplated are within city limits.

Sees Vaudeville in Big Comeback

By The United Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Vaudeville, which once flourished in almost every town and city in the country, is staging a comeback, according to John Cotton, veteran show man here.

The day is not far distant, Cotton believes, when half a dozen show houses here will offer vaudeville to packed houses as they did 20 years ago.

The revival of vaudeville is also causing a revival in theater and vaudeville jargon, according to Cotton.

A vaudeville veteran will refer to a theater as an "ink spot," "break-a-way," "shooting gallery," "mousetrap," "drip pan," or "slab."

"A square and a splash" is the jargon for a room and bath. A "peck and pad joint," is a boarding house and a stage is often referred to as a "shelf."

MILITARY COMMAND SHAKEN BY HITLER

Chief of Staff Reported Out; Von Bock Arrested.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 15 — The belief that Hitler has made a drastic shakeup in his military commands, ousting both Col. Gen. Franz Halder and Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock, was expressed today by qualified London observers on the basis of persistent reports from Stockholm.

Halder was chief of the German general staff, Von Bock commanded the powerful Nazi drive on Stalingrad.

These observers, whose names could not be disclosed, said that the continued reports that the generals had been ousted appeared based on fact, but that the names of their successors had not yet been disclosed.

TWO TRUCKS CRASH IN FOG NEAR MARION

Three Accidents Near City; Cow Killed in One.

Three accidents, one for which the fog this morning was partially blamed and one in which a cow was killed, were reported this morning by the state patrol. No arrests were made and no persons were injured in the accidents.

Property damage to a Commercial Motor Freight trailer truck loaded with steel castings was estimated at $200 when the truck and another loaded with poles sideswiped at 5 a. m. today eight miles south of Marion Route 4.

The freight truck, driven by Roy Hartman of Dayton, was traveling south and the truck loaded with poles, driven by William Rayburn of Peebles, was headed north.

The accident occurred on a stretch of highway where repairs are being made. The heavy fog this morning and the fact that the east side of the highway is slighly higher than the other half may have caused the accident, the patrol reported. The side of the trailer was broken open.

A cow owned by E. L. Brewer of the Upper Sandusky road was slaughtered by the owner after it was injured in an accident about 8 Tuesday night, three miles north of Marion on Route 23. According to the patrol report, the cow was loose on the highway and was injured by a northbound car driven by John C. Haws, 57, of Findlay. The car was damaged slightly.

Cars owned by James H. Fawcett, 42, of Willard and James M. Cosgrove, 65, of Toledo, were damaged considerably in a collision at 8:15 a. m. yesterday three and a half miles west of Crestline on Route 30-N. Mr. Fawcett, traveling south on Route 598, stopped at the highway intersection and then drove onto the highway in the path of an eastbound car driven by Mr. Cosgrove, the patrol reported.

UNCLE SAM OPENS SHOP TO BUY TIRES

Will Take All Over Five to a Car.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The largest tire sale in the nation's history was under way today with only one buyer—Uncle Sam.

The sellers were motorists everywhere with more than five tires, as the government called for every "excess" tire in an effort to keep America rolling.

Uncle Sam was ready to spend $150,000,000, the amount advanced by the Defense Supplies Corp. which designated 100 warehouses throughout the country as delivery points.

All a prospective seller has to do, the office of price administration explained, is to ask the nearest office of the railroad express agency to send a truck to pick up his tires. The owner will receive a check, or war stamps, totalling from $1.50 to $11.25 depending upon the size and condition of the tire.

The purchasing plan is connected with nationwide gasoline rationing regulations which limit each private car to five tires. Rationing coupons, the OPA has ruled, will be issued to private cars only after the owners submit serial numbers of their tires and certify they have no more than five for each automobile. The maximum penalty for false certification is a $10,000 fine and a 10-year prison term.

OPA ceiling prices for used tires govern the amounts to be paid. The $1.50 minimum price is for a "fourth category" tire, one usuable only as a basic carcass for retreading or recapping. The $11.15 maximum will be paid for a 7:00—16 "first category" tire.

DSC also announced it will purchase tubes, too, although gasoline rationing regulations do not put a limit on the number a motorist may possess.

CONVICTED

When he failed to report a United States marshal was sent to Marion and took him into custody on Aug. 27.

According to Erle R. Houser, shop superintendent at the Fairfield Engineering Co., where Berry was employed as a punch press operator, the marshal came into the plant and took Berry off the job.

Pleads Not Guilty

On Sept. 2, Attorney Openlander said, Berry furnished $5,000 bond and was released. The bond was fixed by Federal Commissioner Morton Neipp of Toledo. Monday of this week Berry was arraigned at Toledo and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial began yesterday, first of the cases to be tried.

Among the witnesses for the government was Mrs. Mary Gary, clerk of Draft Board 2, who was subpoenaed into court with the draft board records.

Attorney Openlander said each of the 10 men has as his witnesses members of the sect, and that Berry's witnesses included "quite a few" Jehovah's Witnesses from Marion. He said the witnesses were crowding the corridors of the federal building.

German Supply Ship Sent Down in Channel

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 15—A heavily-escorted German supply ship, declared as important, was sunk in the English channel early Wednesday by British light naval forces, the admiralty announced today.

SOLOMONS

and Fiji islands on the route between the United States and Australia, as well as at other points where their presence had been disclosed previously.

"Recently army ground and air units have moved to Guadalcanal to reinforce the marines who seized important positions in the Solomons and are tenaciously holding them against vigorous Japanese counter attacks," the war secretary said.

"The army and navy forces in this area are fighting in the closest possible cooperation under the unified command of the navy," he added.

Stimson did not disclose when the army forces reached Guadalcanal or their strength.

Numbers Substantial

He said their numbers were "substantial" and that they were under command of Major General Millard F. Harmon of the air forces.

General Harmon, the secretary said, has his headquarters in New Zealand but has spent most of his time at his advance base in New Caledonia.

In a statment outlining army operations on the scattered war fronts, Stimson said a marine commander on Guadalcanal had just reported an instance of "close comradeship" between the army and marine fighters.

This commander, the secretary said, reported that members of an army infantry unit in New Caledonia stripped themselves of cigarets candies and other luxuries which they dispatched to a marine regiment holding advance positions on Guadalcanal.

"In return the marines sent back captured Japanese souvenirs and trophies," Stimson said.

In New Guinea," Stimson said, army fliers for months have been taking a heavy toll of Japanese aircraft and shipping and rendering "splendid support" to the Australians in the advance over the Owen Stanley range.

Struggle Gains in Tempo

The grim struggle for control of the Solomons was rising in Crescendo again with newly reinforced Japanese troops apparently determined to recapture the prized guadalcanal airfield.

Failing to bomb the marine-held airbase in weeks of costly aerial attacks, the enemy turned to their warships, the navy reported last night, and bombarded the landing field and shore installations from the sea.

In spite of an American cruiser-destroyer force recently assigned the task of fighting off seaborne reinforcements on the strategic island, the Japanese, the navy said, succeeded in landing additional troops on Guadalcanal yesterday (Thursday in the Solomons).

Ships Cover Landing

Covered by warships, Japanese transports slipped to the north coast where the enemy troops are concentrated and in the early morning landed reinforcements and presumably artillery which the invaders have lacked.

The navy's communique did not disclose whether the enemy fleet was engaged by the American naval force which only last Sunday routed a similar landing attempt after smashing eight Japanese vessels. The enemy's success in its latest venture led naval circles to believe that a major battle for the airfields was imminent.

In New Guinea, west of the Solomons, the struggle between Japanese and Australian troops also was mounting in intensity. After approaching to 32 miles from their allied base at Port Moresby, weakened supply lines forced the invaders to withdraw toward their northern shore base. Pursuing Australians contacted the enemy last Saturday.

Advance Slows

The allied advance since then has slowed considerably as the Japanese supply line was strengthened and the Australian's weakened by distance. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian headquarters announced last night that the fighting had become heavier.

Meanwhile, U. S. naval quarters regarded recent Japanese naval losses as severely sapping the enemy's supply strength in the Pacific. Japanese ship casualties announced in the last three days total 11 vessels sunk, two probably sunk and five damaged.

This toll of shipping coupled with heavy plane losses, naval observers said, may cause the Japanese to drive desperately for a quick decision on Guadalcanal since their capture of the airfield more than two months ago, has not been revealed. Nor has it been disclosed how much the American forces have been strengthened by additional troops.

CUT IN BUTTERFAT OF MILK PREDICTED

Plan is Considered To Make Supply Meet Needs.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — A government food authority said today it might become necessary to reduce the butterfat content of fluid milk and ice cream and prohibit the sale of whipping cream in order to make the milk supply meet civilian and war needs.

This official, who preferred not to be quoted by name, said such action would divert butterfat into butter and release a larger portion of the total milk supply for conversion into other dairy products, particularly cheese and dried milk. Immense quantities of cheese and dried milk are needed for the United Nations and American troops abroad.

Milk output is lagging considerably behind goals set up under the agriculture department's war food program. Shortages of trained labor, trucks and tires were said to be principal factors contributing to underproduction.

Prodigal Son Theme Of Gospel Center Sermon

The evangelistic service at the Marion Gospel Center last night was marked by a song service and sermon, "I'm Going Home," by Rev. Harry Fagan of Shelby, centered around the story of the prodigal son. He retold the story with an application to both church and "straying worldlings," telling of the wealthy, loving but overindulgent father and the son who wanted to take his fortune and see the world, experiencing in order, pleasure, fairweather friends, depleted funds, shabby clothing, famine and hunger and "hog pen humility."

"His waiting father gave him a welcome and restored him to all his rights as a son. So will God do to all wanderers who truly repent and seek Him," the evangelist said.

The sermon subject for the service tonight at 8 is "Willing Rebecca." Monday night Rev. Fagan, blind from birth, will tell his own life's story.

Stymied by Reds Hitler Turning To New Fronts

This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, World war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb Mackenzie now in Britain on a tour of the war areas, is returned to Chrome with Tom Brown's column.

Adolf Hitler obviously is turning his keen, perhaps anxious, attention to his southern front. Stymied at Stalingrad and finding little reason for comfort elsewhere along his eastern battlelines, he patently feels impelled now to give increasing thought to Africa and southern areas nearer home, Italy, for instance, and the Balkans.

The movements of his subordinates, the switching of his U-boat packs to new hunting grounds and a growing volume of searching speculation from his propaganda machine all indicate the Nazi expectation that the war is approaching a new phase — the African.

New Note Appears

This shift of emphasis differs significantly from similar changes in the past. There is a new note in Berlin's propaganda. This time, for the first time, the new battlefield is not of Hitler's choosing. He appears to be uncertain as to exactly where it is to be. The general tenor is correct on that a blow is coming, and that the initiative will not be Germany's.

Marshal Rommel, having received marked honors at the hands of the fuehrer himself in Berlin, has returned to the command of his African armies. Himmler of the gestapo, has gone to Rome. New generals have been sent to the Balkans. And Admiral Raeder's submarine flotillas are making their greatest effort of the moment in the waters off West Africa and the Cape of Good Hope.

A new factor sharpens the Nazi anxieties. "The Yanks are coming" is in effect the refrain of a stream of radio outpourings from Berlin. "The belief is voiced that American troops will play a very important part in the coming developments," said the Berlin station last night.

One day a military commentator reports new concentrations of General Montgomery's British eighth army deep in Egypt, below the Qattara depression and speculates, in a vein reassuring to the home folks, as to its significance. Again the Nazi radio reports allied movements menacing to French West Africa.

Yesterday it was a story of a British-American concentration in Gambia, the British territory nearest Dakar, the pivotal point of the whole West African area. With this was spread a report, admittedly unconfirmed, of an allied convoy approaching Dakar.

Berlin is displaying, too, an uncommon interest in the journey to London of Field Marshal Smuts, the very un-English prime minister of South Africa who a generation ago played the leading role in wresting from Germany her African empire and adding it to Britain's. Smuts' visit, the Germans seem convinced, means ominous happenings in Africa. So they beam both to the Vichy French and to Smuts' own country a blast of warnings about American designs in Africa, which, said one Berlin broadcast, Mr. Roosevelt is planning "to make a glacis (outer defense space) for his own western hemisphere."

Other European war developments:

Second front—DNB, the official news agency, reported an increasing series of British commando raids along the Nazi-occupied French coast in September and declared.

"It can be deduced that the British command intends to give way to the Soviet demand for a second front and to make Normandy the scene of such an attack."

Aerial warfare — Hard-fighting defenders of Malta, key British stronghold in the Mediterranean, were officially credited with shooting down 23 more axis planes over the island yesterday, making a four-day toll of at least 65. Five RAF Spitfires were acknowledged lost.

The intensity of the attack on Malta suggested that the axis was moving heavy reinforcements across the Mediterranean to North Africa. Coincidentally, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, who recently saw Hitler in Berlin, was reported to have returned to his post on the Egyptian front.

United States and allied bombers have been repeatedly attacking the axis supply port of Tobruk in the past few days, indicating that every attempt was being made to prevent a new influx of troops and supplies for Rommel's long-stalled armies.

WAR CHEST

Marion county drive will go to the British and Chinese War Relief funds. Each is to get $2,230.43 or $2.14 of each $100.

The British War Relief society was founded in the dark days of December, 1939, and its activities include operation of American ambulances with 300 motor units covering 27 districts of the British Isles. It has furnished 1,000 mobile kitchens that have fed countless thousands of civilians and air-raid workers. It provided a fleet of 144 heavy motor trucks that served as food convoys to rush provisions to such devastated cities as Coventry and other places hit by the Nazi blitz. Another enterprise of the society has been the maintenance of homes, hospitals and hostels for bomb-shocked convalescent and evacuated children, also hostels for the aged and infirm. In all, the society has been largely responsible for operation of nearly 400 such institutions. It has kept a steady stream of used clothing donated by Americans flowing to British people suffering from lack of garments. American businessmen in London supervise its activities.

Service To Chinese

The China War Relief society is providing direct medical, nutritional and other aids for hundreds of thousands of soldiers as well as civilians of all ages. Last year more than 1,064,000 men, women and children in war-stricken areas received medical aid in hospitals, clinics and dispensaries financed by the society. Services to wounded soldiers and civilians last year included medical and public health, child welfare, educational aid, economic reconstruction and direct relief to refugees in battle areas.

The stories of the British and China relief societies are a picture in general of similar organizations working for the relief of war victims in Poland, Greece, Russia and Holland. The Marion county drive is expected to yield $637.28 for Polish relief, $1,911.84 for Greek relief, $1,752.52 for Russian relief and $159.32 for Holland through the Dutch Queen Wilhelmina fund. All these relief societies are raising huge funds in America — virtually the only source from which substantial relief can come now—to aid wounded soldiers and civilians, care for orphaned children and refugees. Medical attention, food and shelter are provided in some measure for those who otherwise can not obtain them.

War Prisoners Aid

Another war agency is the War Prisoners Aid committee which has undertaken the tremendous task of providing attention for prisoners of all nationalities. Recreational, intellectual, cultural and moral needs of prisoners are met insofar as possible in this worldwide program, conducted by the World's Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland. Assistance is given all war prisoners or interned aliens, including many prisoners of the United Nations held by the Axis. The Marion county goal includes $471.27 for War Prisoners Aid.

Marion county always has given generously to individual campaigns to relieve suffering in countries struck by catastrophe. War Chest drive leaders declare Marion county residents are again prepared to do their part. Men heading the campaign emphasize, however, that in the United War Chest drive, some 20 agencies are to share in the proceeds—that giving must be done on the basis of 20 times what an individual might give to any one of a series of 20 campaigns that would have to be conducted were it not for the unified drive of the United War Chest.

Summing up the appeal, J. E. Oliphant, president of the Marion Community Foundation through which the drive is being staged, declared that "Marion county residents want to do their part. To realize fully what their part is in this tremendous campaign, they must consider the broad program of work all over the world this campaign will help finance. Once they see the scope of this effort and sense its importance, I have no doubt about the size of their gifts—they will reach or exceed the basis of giving we are suggesting in the campaign, which is an hour's pay each month."

Too Much Cold Weather Drinking Leads To Frostbite, Scientists Learn

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

WASHINGTON—If you feel the urge to take a drink this winter because there's a chill in the air—go slow, don't drink many.

Georgetown university medical school scientists have discovered that too much liquor chills the body to a dangerous degree. It is quite true that one drink is warming. In that case the blood vessels are dilated and more warming fluid passes through them.

But it is also true that heavy drinking cools the fingers of human beings. That this is not merely a surface cooling was shown at Georgetown by intoxicated rats. The experiments were reported to the American Medical association by Dr. J. Ross Veal and Dr. Roy G. Klepser, of Gallinger Municipal hospital and Georgetown.

Inebriated rats, merely lolling in a warm room of 70 degrees, suffered temperature drops of two to 14 degrees. They were nicely pre-cooled for speedy frostbite.

The frostbitten condition of many of the drunken men brought to Gallinger in the winter months bears out the rat evidence of cold treachery in too many drinks. It has resulted also in frostbite treatments with some improved techniques.

Old Remedy All Right

The old remedy of rubbing snow on frostbites is all right. It does no harm, and its benefits are in insurance that the frozen part will not be allowed to warm up too rapidly.

The first treatment at Georgetown is to warm the entire body. Next the frosted parts are gradually warmed to a temperature of 85 to 90. Third come warm drinks or whisky. The liquor is confined however to a mild booster, enough for the initial dilation of blood vessels.

After that the frost bitten part is moved gently. This ends the treatment, provided the frostbite is no worse than first degree, which means that no blood vessels have been seriously damaged.

The common experience of having fingers, toes or ears sensitive to cold after a frost bite is not considered serious, but only the aftermath of a first degree freeze.

Injection Stops Pain

For second degree, the Georgetown doctors add two treatments. One is aseptic dressing for the frosted parts. The other is a shot of novocaine at the back of the spine, provided the freeze is in the lower extremities. The antiseptic stops foot and toe pain and it also stops spasm, a condition after serious frost bite in which the small arteries are constricted.

In addition to this spasm, frostbites may cause formation of small blood clots, which can clog small blood vessels and occasionally even stop flow in large vessels.

Sometimes frost bites leave feet or toes with a permanently damaged blood supply. This may involve serious risk. In that case, a surgical operation at the base of the spine, to sever some of the sympathetic system nerves to the lower extremities, results in permanently warmer feet and toes.

Third degree frostbites involve those cases where the freezing damage leads to surgical amputations.

The experience at Georgetown indicates that in winter military operations, men whose extremities have become sensitive due to frostbite should be careful about further exposure.

SKIN TESTS USED IN BLOOD TYPING

Development Expected To Be Life Saver.

By The United Press

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Dr. Milton Levine, University of Minnesota medical school, has developed skin tests to use in connection with plasma and serum transfusions, in order to determine the type of transfusion which may be administered safely to individual patients.

Levine believes his development will aid in saving the lives of many wounded who formerly have died because the plasma or serum used in a transfusion was a type unsuited to the individual.

Heretofore, it was believed all plasma and serum from the four blood groups could be indiscriminately administered in transfusions.

But Dr. Levine, in his experiments in the bacteriology department, discovered that some persons are allergic to one or more of the plasma and serum types.

Test Takes 10 Minutes

Symptoms of a patient found sensitive to the plasma or serum administered to him include headaches, dizziness, nausea, difficult breathing and in some cases, shock, resulting in death, Dr. Levine said.

During six months research he found a simple way of determining sensitivity or allergy to the plasma and serum types by skin tests which require only 10 minutes for a positive or negative reaction.

If a bit of plasma or serum is injected under the top layer of skin, and redness and swelling in the injected area results after 10 minutes, that particular plasma or serum is the wrong type, Dr. Levine said.

Tests must then be repeated with other groups, he said, until the proper type is found.

Disproves Old Belief

Plasma is distinguished from serum as the liquid portion of human blood which has not clotted. Serum is the liquid portion of clotted blood.

Dr. Levine's development disproves a former conception that all types of plasma and serum were harmless in transfusion. As a result of this belief, the "blood bank," where all types were pooled, came into being.

However, Dr. Levine pointed out that even plasma and serum pooled as in "blood banks," may be used in emergencies for a patient known to be sensitive to a certain type. This is possible because the percentage of the harmful type administered to the allergic patient in a transfusion would be extremely small, he said.

Excavate Indian Burial Ground in Wyandot County

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 15—Digging through the skeletons of the great, great, great grandfathers of the Tribes Reber farm, a field in which it has been said there existed this week by Ohio State Museum workers under the direction of H. Shumway Earp of the department of archaeology of the museum, in an effort to gain more information on the prehistoric Indians who lived in the Sandusky plain in the unrecorded past.

The site was first discovered several years ago by workmen digging sand and gravel from the mound for roadwork. Excavations since then, and in the past several days have disclosed the skeleton remains of a large number of individuals buried there, surrounded by shell beads, copper ornaments, bone harpoons, deer antler tips, flint weapons and tools, and a large supply of red ochre, a material used as war paint by the Indians and probably by their earlier ancestors.

SIX-POUND PUFF BALL

Found Near Caledonia, Now On Display Here.

A puff ball, weighing exactly six pounds and believed to be the largest found in Marion county in recent years, is now on display in the window of the Home Federal Savings & Loan association at 128 South Main street.

The specimen was found in a woods on the Clarence Magee farm near Caledonia. A second puff ball, weighing about five pounds, was also found near the larger one. Mrs. Magee gave the second ball to Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Parish of east of Caledonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Parish decided it only fair to let a few to friends and relatives and were persuaded to display it in the bank window.

The ball is about 19 inches in diameter. A white leathery skin protects the "meat" of the ball, Mrs. Parish said. When prepared much the same as cauliflower, the meat of the puff ball is classed as a nutritious food.

NENOFF, CARONE ON MAT BILL TONIGHT

Booked To Tangle in Main Go on Armory Bill.

Bulgarian Steve Nenoff and Fred Carone of Boston are scheduled to meet in the main-go attraction on tonight's Armory wrestling program.

This match promises to be the wildest, fightingest match yet to be staged by Promoter Les Fishbaugh in many months. The two were on opposite teams in last week's tag team feature match. Nenoff teamed with Axel Madsen to dispose of Carone and Sailor Olsen in great fashion.

The winners copped the first fall, but foul play resulted in a Carone-Olsen victory in the second fall. The latter pair started off the third fall in the same rough manner and before the fall was five minutes old, Carone had lost the first half by disqualifications. Referee Gil Lautzenheiser charged Carone with choking Madsen. Nenoff sewed up the fight by overpowering the Sailor.

After the fight was officially over, Caorne challenged Madsen to a fist fight. After swapping devastating blows for less than two minutes, Carone made his greatest mistake. He resorted to a series of unorthodox tactics and finally the veteran Nenoff clambered into the ring. One solid punch sent Carone racing from the ringside.

Larry Kasaboski of Toronto, Canada, brother of the noted heavyweight, Alex Kasaboski, will make his first appearance here tonight by engaging Nick Billins, the Birmingham, Ala., Greek.

Jack Hobbs of Leesville, Ind., gets one more chance to prove his ability tonight. He is slated to meet Axel Madsen in the 30-minute preliminary event.

SUNSPOTS TO BE INTENSE IN 1948

Expected To Cause Trouble for Radio and Telephone.

By International News Service

...GO — The third largest ... of sunspots since 1749 ... in 1948, it was pre... the current issue of the ... of Chicago Journal of ...

Dr. ... Gleissberg, a refugee ... Nazi Germany, now a ... of astronomy at the ... of Istanbul Turkey, is ... butor of the calcula... ...e of the few scientific ... which have come out of ... Europe.

...e made clear that the fore... ...t one of absolute predic... ...t rather expressed in ... probabilities inasmuch as the former, as in the case of an eclipse, cannot be made.

The period, according to Dr. Gleissberg's reports, will produce a marked hinderance of long distance radio, and static will be conspicuous. Magnetic disturbances will occur, causing difficulty for navigators the northern lights will be frequent and luminous and electrical disturbances will disrupt power transmission lines and telephone connections.

Severe drouths periodicities in certain weather phenomena and an abundance of wild animals are other results attributed to sunspots.

Dr. Gleissberg contradicts a false theory that couples sunspot intensity and human events because "science has not established any direct connection between them."

Sunspots have been of interest to astronomers since Galileo turned the telescope on the sun in 1610.

Schwabe of Germany contributed more to the study in 1844.

In modern times sunspots occurred in 1916, 1917 and 1937 and were low in 1922 and 1923. Intensity of sunspots at the present time is relatively low.

PORTABLE LAUNDRY BOON TO SOLDIERS

Army Operates Field Unit and Gives Speedy Service.

By International News Service

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. — Accommodating 144,000 men a week is the job of the Mobile Laundry Unit of the 63rd Quartermaster Battalion.

And the elapsed time from soldier to laundry and back to soldier is only four hours.

The unit is enthusiastically endorsed by the men at the camp as a top-notch morale-builder because it is a service and is free.

The mobile laundry does not attempt to compete with civilian laundries, but is doing this work merely as a part of training and maneuvers. Much of the personnel is composed of former civilian launderers and laundry workers.

Special features of each individual unit—there are three companies activated at Camp Edwards and one elsewhere — include; a gasoline driven power generator, oil burning steam boiler, air compressor, an electric injection pump, water supply booster pump washer, extractor, and two tumblers for drying.

Limitations are few. By its very nature, distance is no hardship. It can be set up in a minimum area of 100 feet by 300 feet and can operate from any fresh water supply, whether a piped system, a lake, pond, stream or any other body of sufficient water.

* No provision is made for finishing or pressing the clothes. They are merely laundered and woolens are not attempted because of shrinkage.

A Promise for Tomorrow

By ELEANOR ATTERBURY

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

In A Trap

JULIE moved a little away to make room. "Where do we go from here?"

"Not home," Pete said, and he pored the matter over. "Dawn [illegible] Laverne [illegible] Mount [illegible] The whole thing [illegible]"

"Do you think Mr. Kelland has lost his mind?"

Pete shook his head. "He's not insane, anyway. He must have lost his good judgment, to be sure. Anybody could see that Senator Mount is a [illegible]"

"His name [illegible] 'Mount,' of course," Julie thought aloud.

"I know you're right. But why do you suppose he's so set on keeping us here?"

"Suppose it's a matter of getting that letter back," Julie began, looking at her. "And suppose he's cooperating with the enemy—an agent of some kind. Naturally, he would suspect everyone of being out to get him. He knows we think something is rotten here. He didn't expect us. Now his own plans have to be altered."

"But what has Kelland to do with it?"

Julie shrugged. "You have me there. Unless Dawn is involved some way."

"Involved in burning up her own property?" Pete scoffed. "Not much."

"All right. You guess."

Pete rubbed his chin reflectively. "I'm guessing Dawn's in a scrape and Kelland came to buy or beg her out of it. The part I can't guess about is the gun-play. Unless she actually was kidnapped. That, of course, might account for Kelland's strange behaviour."

"Trying to keep it secret until he'd paid a ransom, of course," Julie supplemented. "I still don't see why he didn't encourage us to go on to the car and let Mount make his get-away."

Pete snorted. "A grade-A kidnapper wouldn't let anybody get away who might identify him later!"

"Well, what do you think he'll do with us?"

"That will depend on how smart we play our cards, Julie. If I could think of some—"

"Listen!" Julie stiffened. A sound of footsteps overhead—short, sharp-heeled steps of a woman. A murmur of voices rising angrily, hushed abruptly, began again as a muffled hum. Then a door opened. The footsteps clicked steadily down the hall, down the stairs. Heavier steps followed immediately.

A moment later the sound of a key crunching in the lock and the parlor door opened.

For a moment, Julie could not convince herself that the pale, hollow-eyed girl standing before her now was actually Dawn Kelland. Immaculate in white slacks, a soft silk shirt, a little girl bow tucked into a top-most curl, Dawn smiled, held out her hands in greeting with the same silvery,

"Hello, darlings. I know you must think we are all perfectly mad,"—blythely, and turned to Pete, "Forgive us, won't you?"

Both Pete and Julie stood mute, however, because the next brought the sneering Mr. Mount into the doorway.

"Sit down, won't you?" Dawn went on, perching on the arm of the old sofa. "It's all such a terribly long—and dull—story. But, you will be patient, won't you?"

Julie nodded, too absorbed in trying to reconcile Dawn's light-hearted words with the tragic terror written so plainly in her big blue eyes. Nothing matched up. The jaunty outfit, her bright smile—the nervous, almost imperceptible twitch of her eyelids, the faint, unnatural huskiness in her voice. And of course, to Julie's practiced eye, it was quite obvious that it had been Dawn's weeping they had heard.

"Well—it does seem sort of dopey," Pete grinned, leaned an elbow on each knee as he sat waiting for her to go on. "Your—friend here says your father's lost his mind."

Dawn hesitated for a [illegible] at the tall, dark man [illegible] "Yes, I am afraid [illegible] case."

[illegible] disapproval [illegible] Julie intercepted the glance [illegible] returned to her. Oddly [illegible] he held an [illegible] the gun at [illegible] stock.

He walked deliberately to the [illegible], sat down beside Dawn, [illegible] her fluttering hand. Julie caught the little gesture of withdrawal in the instant before Dawn deliberately leaned against the man's arm.

"Daddy's been very ill, as you know," Dawn began slowly, as if trying to remember exact words. "He has always objected to Arnold's and my being friends. And when he found that we were planning to elope he followed us here in a fit of insane rage."

"Well!" Pete snorted. He's been symptomatic all right. "Had he ever had anger like that before?"

"Oh, no. Never. It was just—this time. And—you see he threatened to send for police," Dawn went on, more rapidly now, "and when Arnolds, Arnold, I mean, found you here he thought you must be officers sent to—to prevent our marriage."

Dawn's Plan

She laughed nervously, looked up at him a moment, evidently saw approval in his expression, and went on. "So then Arnold pulled a gun on you. I do hope you aren't too seriously frightened."

"No—not exactly," Julie said. Not frightened at all, quite unconvinced. Dawn was not in love with this man. She was terrified of him. What was the awful secret she was trying so desperately to hide?

"And now I feel that since it was so terribly fortunate that you did happen to come just at the right time," Dawn rain glad, perhaps you can persuade Dad that it isn't a crime for me to—love—Arnold. Won't you help me per suade him, please?" she begged prettily.

Julie ached with sympathy for the girl. Desperate, in mortal fear, she was obviously putting up a gallant front—but for what. Julie couldn't possibly guess. Certainly, it was not for love of this man.

That her "Arnold" loved her was more nearly believable. No, Julie amended the thought immediately, it wasn't love, but rather "desire." He wanted Dawn, cut no face that fell so cruelly could possibly be one of a man truly in love. He was determined to have her, fair means or foul. And, Julie knew intuitively, these tears were certainly "foul."

"What do you want us to do?" Julie asked quietly.

"Stay on, I—I—as you'd planned," she answered rapidly, "and take Daddy fishing with you when you go out in the morning. Arnold can go along and perhaps that way Dad can really get acquainted with him enough to—forgive me."

Julie and Pete exchanged glances.

"Sounds like a good idea," Pete said slowly. "If you're strong enough to stand the hiking."

"He'd love it. And we'll be terribly grateful to you. I will help. Won't we, darling?"

Which remark, Julie [illegible] easily, might mean what it [illegible] to say—and might not. The dislike which she had taken [illegible] man that day on the train [illegible] to loathing now.

Life for U. S. Marines in Solomons Like Picnic — There Are Always Ants

By TOM YARBROUGH

GUADALCANAL — (Wide World)— Life in the Solomon islands is like a picnic in only one way—the ants are always with us.

They're in and on everything, including this typewriter, and they never give up. The fact that the marines who invaded the Solomons aren't ready for the bushwhacker affords still another proof that the marines are stout fellows, indeed.

The day (for those who aren't out on the line watching the Japanese) begins about dawn or before. More often than not, the marine is awakened by the unearthly cries of strange birds—birds that chatter and warble, whistle and hoot, haggle and squawk, and frequently sound like bilious human beings in an extreme state of annoyance.

The dawn breaks fast and the smell of good strong American coffee drifts through the camp.

The marine stretches tentatively, making sure his back has not been broken for he's been sleeping with nothing between him and the rocky ground but a Japanese mat and a blanket or, if he's especially lucky, a flat wooden thing about six feet long (Japanese made). There isn't any reveille. As far as I can find out, there isn't a single bugle in all the Solomons.

The marine brushes his teeth with water poured from his canteen and washes his face in a Japanese wash pan. The only dressing he has to do is to put on his shoes because he sleeps in his clothes every night, ready to move at a moment's notice. That's a small part of the preparedness for things that can happen here.

If he shaves, he's in the minority. Beards are extremely popular and if he doesn't have one, he has a goodstart.

Here is a sample breakfast a la Solomons: scrambled eggs (powdered), bacon, canned figs, bread, butter and coffee. Coffee comes with every meal and sometimes in between. The marines wouldn't be part of the navy if they didn't have plenty of coffee.

Unlike the British in tropical climates the marine doesn't wear shorts. His khaki outfit of long trousers, shirt or jumper of union suit and heavy shoes looks more like an ordinary worker's getup than a soldier's uniform but it's practical for the job at hand. His headgear usually is a cloth cap or a sun helmet that comes out of Ma Su but—or none at all. He's frequently bare from the waist up and therefore has a fine tan.

Plenty of Mud

It's a good thing he has heavy shoes because he has to tramp, tramp, tramp through plenty of mud. Nearly every day brings some rain. The mud is black and gummy but at these latitudes it doesn't take long to dry out.

The marine has been having only two meals a day, with the second coming between midafternoon and nightfall. This might sound surprising to persons who have been filling their stomachs three times a day all their lives, but the marines have not been singing the "chow meal" blues.

After days and days on that same abbreviated eating schedule, I can testify I've always felt well fed. Perhaps it's a result of eating comparatively more at each sitting. There's always plenty and it's good. Here's a sample afternoon menu: chili with beans, rice, string beans, bread, butter, canned pears, coffee. Another: Corned beef stew, navy beans, bread, butter, canned peaches, coffee. Occasionally there is fresh meat.

As for the little comforts of life, they've been coming along in fairly good supply. There have been almost enough cigarets for normal smoking and a good bit of candy, largely as a result of Donaldie and welcome "raids" on every ship that rolls.

U. S. Newsman Finds You Can Travel Long Way with Americans at all Stops

... luce has covered a lot ... in the last three ... been in many coun... a lot of war. But in ... he forgets the fighting, ... about United States ... some of the things ... the things they see. ... their morale is swell.

By DAN DE LUCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(Wide World)—The United States' longest war route extends 20,000 miles from little old New York to little old Chungking. You can fly every mile of the way with American wings. At every stop, you can eat American chow, drink American soft drinks, some American cigarets, and yarn with American boys.

The American in khaki is a common sight today, whether its ... clearing on the edge of Burmese jungles, a grass-hut village of black Hausa tribesmen in the middle of Africa, a mud-walled bazaar under the Arabian sun, a cantonment at the foot of the Himalayas, or a ferryboat crossing the Yangtze.

Young America abroad in South America, Africa and Asia is getting liberal education. And paying for it, of course, in various ways. Khartoum has become as familiar as Kansas. Tel Aviv's ... are found to rival those of Atlantic City, Karachi is desolate, but the Taj Mahal at Agra, despite the tawdry wooden scaffolding hiding its dome, is counted worth seeing.

Find New Ailments

Near the equator, the common head cold isn't so common. But dengue fever or sand-fly fever is. Americans on duty overseas are learning, also, to guard against "Teheran tummy" and "Delhi Belly" and "Kunming colic"—which come from sampling native-cooked foods.

Even when you're eating such excellent fare as that which Frank Pelican, ex-marine from San Francisco, provides in an air-conditioned mess near the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates, you take a five-grain quinine pill after downing Frank's suppertime apple pie, because there's always malaria to remember.

American planes along the route always have bumper loads. Fighting men and equipment crowd air space on the outward flights. Going home, there are cargoes of pigs' bristles and tungsten from China, mica from India, rubber from West Africa.

Young Americans don't forget their folks. The U. S. army hauls by air for six cents' postage letters addressed to troops in foreign lands. The troops are prolific letter writers themselves. Their replies are carried home free. As for packages of curios and souvenirs, there's a moderate parcel post rate.

Americans are wising up to gyp natives tradesmen. If you buy a ruby ring for your wife or sweetheart from some Hindu gem dealer, you put it in a glass of water overnight to see if the water turns red. You take it to an English shop and have it appraised. Then, if you're satisfied, you send it home by army post. Or if you buy a carved African bust from a gold coast peddler, you make sure that it's ebony, as claimed, and not cheap iron wood.

If there's any discussion or worry in the United States about the morale of American armed services in foreign war zones, it might as well stop. Morale, in the civilian mind, tends to become confused with the problem of keeping troops entertained and comfortable. Soldiers are glad to have their favorite smokes and a coke, when available, but that's not what they're fighting for. When the heat's on, they consider themselves lucky to get a piece of hardtack, a slice of canned beef and a swig of tepid chlorinated water.

I have seen the AVG in action in Burma and China and army pilots flying into battle from bases in the Middle East, and I have read of what American ground troops did at Bataan and are doing in the Solomons. And I, as one citizen, suggest that we pigeonhole the subject of American fighting morale for the duration.

You can fly the United States' longest war route of 20,000 miles from New York to Chungking and you won't find a slacker.

ARMY AIR FORCE HEADS GOOD SHOTS

Generals Prove Skill as Riflemen.

By The United Press

ATLANTA, Ga.—Important discoveries—some "too vital to talk about"—have been made since Uncle Sam started using substitutes for critical materials in Army supplies, officials of the Fourth Service Command revealed.

For instance, the Ordnance Department is now using plastics for aluminum in trench mortar fuses. Efficiency experts say that this will release 35,000,000 pounds of aluminum for other uses by the end of 1943.

Of more significance, they reported, is the fact that plastic fuses can be moulded and require little or no machining, thus releasing valuable machine tools for other war duties.

Under the Army conservation program every item which contains critical metal is studied for possible replacement with substitutes. If practicable, the substitute then is demanded in manufacturing specifications.

This conservation plan, army leaders believe, will save more than 62,000,000 pounds of tin and aluminum by the end of 1943.

Redesign plays an important part in the conservation effort according to the experts. It already has materially reduced the amount of tin used in packing boxes for ammunition.

Chromium steel liners are now used in place of tinned copper in smokeless powder boxes. Tin used in the solder for signal flares has been reduced 20 per cent without reducing their effectiveness.

Substitutes for aluminum in ordnance manufacture are now used in everything from small screws to large assemblies. It's all a part of the great American goal to bring the Axis to their knees.

Harding Presidents End Practice Tonight for Ashland Game Frida

Drill Under Lights at 7:30 Tonight; Jenkins Recovering from Influenza Attack.

Bolstered by the return of Fullback LeRoy Harvey and Tackle Don Hay, Marion Harding's football Presidents appeared to be in better shape for their all-important Ashland game tomorrow night at 8:30 under the incandescents of Harding stadium.

Halfback Harold Jenkins, the Hardings' ace scorer, was expected to be ready for tonight's final workout at 7:30 in the stadium. He missed yesterday's practice after suffering a slight influenza attack. Coach Dorris said a check with Jenkins last night revealed the speed merchant would be ready to start against the A's.

In last year's tussle with the Ashlands, Jenkins was one of two Hardingmen to score on pass interceptions. Jenkins started his pass during the first half and scampered half the length of the field for a touchdown. Leo Belcoup, now in the armed service, was the other Presty pass interceptor.

Harvey, who suffered a slight head concussion in the game with Mt. Vernon two weeks ago, is still in a weak condition. The stellar Harding fullback returned to practice Monday night and has worked out all this week.

The Harding practice sessions have been held inside Harding stadium all this week as a precaution against lurking Ashland scouts. Coach Dorris said recently that he had been told by members of the team that Ashland scouts watched the Harding drills before both the Mt. Vernon and Lima Central game.

A different attack from that which won over Columbus West, Mt. Vernon and Lima Central has been evolved for the Ashlanders. This is another reason for secret Harding drills this week.

The Marion-Ashland rivalry dates back to post World War I days. The two teams have played each year since the league was formed in 1919. In the 23 games between the two teams, Harding is at present on the short end with 10 victories as compared to 11 for the A's. Two of the games ended in ties.

Ashland last won in 1936 when one of "Red" Longley's teams pulled a 12-0 surprise.

Winners of Four

So far this year Ashland has won four straight games, winning over Willard by 12-0, Norwalk by 33-0, Bucyrus by 20-0 and Shelby by 40-0. Ashland is the only N. C. O. team to boast an unsullied goal. Last year the Hardings completed an eight game season without a score crossing their goal.

One thing, above all others, in favor of Harding in Friday's battle is the spirit of the two teams. In Harding practices this week, the attitude has been about the same as that of the marines in the Solomons. Coach Dorris has been able to make his charges realize that they are underdogs for the first time this year.

On the other hand, the Ashland team and Ashland fans are cocksure of a victory. They may win, but their present state of over confidence is certainly a point in favor of our local boys.

BUCKEYE OFFENSIVE HIGHEST IN NATION; TULSA TEAM SECOND

Oklahoma 11 Wins Honors for All Around Balance.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 football team in this week's Associated Press poll, also is the country's offensive leader, but honors for all around balance go to smaller Tulsa university.

Team figures from the American Football Statistical bureau today showed Tulsa, defending Missouri Valley champion, runner up to Ohio State in total offense, first in total defense, second to Columbia in forward passing, first in pass defense and fourth in defense against rushing.

Defeat Service Teams

The Golden Hurricanes achieved this record chiefly at the expense of service teams, defeating the Waco army flying school, 84-0, and Randolph Field, 68-0. But it also trounced Oklahoma, 23-0.

They have gained 634 yards by rushing and 618 by passing for an average gain per game of 417.3 yards. Ohio State, which finished the 1939 season as the nation's No. 1 offensive team, has an average of 457.3 yards to show for its first three games this season. Of its total of 1,372 yards gained, 1,010 have been by rushing.

Tulsa had permitted an average of only 46 yards a game in total defense, Manhattan was second at 71, followed by Illinois (76.03) and Arizona, last week's leader, (79.7).

Against forward passes Tulsa has yielded an average of 15.3 yards a game. Then came Arizona (22.7) and Illinois (23.3).

At throwing passes, the Golden Hurricanes were outranked only by Columbia and its ace, Paul Governali, who have averaged 250.3 yards to Tulsa's 206. Third was Georgia with 166.

Brown topped Ohio State in average yards gained by rushing with 346 in two games to the Buckeyes' 338.7 in three.

Punting honors went to the North Carolina naval pre-flight, which averaged 41.79 yards a punt.

On the Local Front

Meetings Soon To Decide Future of Basketball in County, N. C. O.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

While all local attention is focused on the current football season, and especially Marion Harding's crucial battle with the Ashland Hilloppers Friday night at Harding Stadium, the question of the future of basketball is beginning to receive considerable attention in this area.

Next Monday night superintendents of the twelve Marion county schools will meet with Superintendent D. T. Mills to discuss the winter athletic program in the rural schools.

Since basketball is the major inter-scholastic sport played in the county system, the superintendents will decide the number of games to be played in league competition this season. Whether or not the group will vote to restrict non-league games was not known.

• • •

N. C. O. UNCERTAIN

Status of the winter sport in the North Central Ohio conference is about as uncertain as the county setup.

Without a home floor it would be next to impossible for Harding to operate in the league in the coming season. Last year for the first time in the school's history all of its cage contests were played on foreign courts. During the last few weeks of the 1940-'41 season "home" games were played in Edwards gym on the Ohio Wesleyan university campus in Delaware. However, the same arrangement this season would be about as unsatisfactory to all concerned as playing all the games on the home floors of the five other league teams.

In the next few weeks Harding officials are expected to draft a proposal to officials of the N. C. O. league, requesting permission to hold its "home" games in the Edison Junior High school gymnasium.

The floor at this building is a little under regulation size and seating capacity is only about 250 or 300, but this is by far the best site available in Marion.

Immediately following the present grid season, officials of the N. C. O. will meet to map plans for the cage season. At this time the Harding proposal probably be presented.

Another development in the N. C. O. may be the abolishment of the reserve league. If this is done, only a varsity composed of 10 or 12 players would be carried to out-of-town games.

Private cars is the only mode of transportation available for athletic teams. By carrying only a limited varsity squad, only two or three private cars would be necessary.

SHORTAGE OF OFFICIALS

Supt. D. T. Mills of the county school department says the rubber shortage and future rationing of gasoline is not the only barrier in the way of a full scholastic sports program this winter.

Three of the schools in the county are at present without coaches, Prospect, Caledonia and Meeker.

Present male members of the faculty probably will handle the coaching job at Prospect left vacant by the resignation of Paul Keller. The same is true at Caledonia, where Eugene Haas coached last season. Haas is now in the armed service. Principal Paul Sherck will take over at Meeker in place of Homer Schilling.

Besides the acute coaching problem, a shortage of game officials is expected, Supt. Mills said. Only one man has asked to be considered for an officiating job, whereas, nearly a dozen have usually applied by this time in other years, Mr. Mills said.

IRISH ABOUT-FACE STILL IS PUZZLE

Five Reasons Listed for 27-0 Win Over Stanford.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 15—As Notre Dame prepared for this week's game here with the Iowa Seahawks, sideline observers were busy casting about for reasons for the Fighting Irish about-face which resulted in a convincing 27 to 0 triumph over Stanford last Saturday.

Some of the reasons advanced were these:

1. The boys wanted to win for their stricken coach, Frank Leahy, who left Friday for the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., after sticking to his coaching chores longer than he probably should have. They knew that he had been on the field at times when he should have been under the care of a physician.

2. Harry Wright, No. 1 right guard, who quarterbacked the 1941 team to an undefeated record, was calling signals. Harry himself pretends to be no particular genius in calling plays. "I just call them and tell the boys on the idea that the play I've called is the best one in the books," he says. "They make it work."

3. Angelo Bertelli, junior quarterback, whose signal calling duties in the first two games apparently weighed too heavily on him and affected his play, was relieved of these responsibilities and tossed the ball with his old time abandon. He completed 14 out of 20 for 233 yards and for all of the four touchdowns. Against Stanford, he kicked 3 out of 4 placements, barely missing with the fourth, as an indication of his return to first rate mechanical form.

4. Irish receivers were faking better than they did in the first two games, according to Backfield Coach Ed McKeever, making it easier for Bertelli to hit them.

5. Leahy gave the squad extra conditioning work last week, including jogging, wind sprints, and calisthenics in greater proportions than before. The line blocked and tackled with new aggressiveness, although there is still room for improvement. Pass protection was the best given to Bertelli this year.

You Always Lose

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—You don't have to bet on the horses at race tracks to lose money. You can achieve the same result by buying them.

Mrs. H. H. Nimkoff made a claim for Hup Nancy before the field went to the gate in the third race at Jamaica yesterday. She posted $1,200 to bind the transaction.

Hup Nancy, the favorite, broke down during the race with ruptured tendons and had to be destroyed.

Mrs. Nimkoff literally paid $1,200 for a dead horse.

Cross-Country Season To Open at Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 15—Notre Dame will open its cross-country season here Saturday against Loyola of Chicago. Irish mainstays include Ollie Hunter, Frank Conforti, Tony Maloney and Don Currie. Maloney was second in the N. C. A. A. two-mile and Conforti was fourth in the mile after setting the pace for three-quarters. The Irish last year won the Loyola Invitational, in which they will appear again Oct. 31.

BROWN PROTEGE TO LEAD BOILERMAKERS

Burnham Names Vince Snyder Game Captain.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—A former football pupil of Coach Paul Brown of Ohio State university will lead the Purdue Boilermakers against the Buckeye eleven here Saturday in a game that may decide the Big Ten leadership.

Coach Elmer Burnham of the Boilermakers selected Vince (Rocky) Snyder, a former quarterback on one of Brown's great Massillon, O., High school teams a few years back, to captain the Purdue squad Saturday.

Purdue and Ohio State each has one Big Ten victory in the bag this season, and the victor Saturday will be sure of a first place berth in the conference race. Illinois, also boasting one conference win—that historic upset of Minnesota—can grab a share of the leadership, however, by downing Iowa.

Purdue beat Northwestern last week, a 7-6 upset. Ohio's triumph came at the expense of Indiana two weeks ago by a 32-21 count.

Despite the game's importance in the conference race, a "slim" crowd of 40,000 is expected. Many school children, who were to be guests at the game, will be unable to attend because of transportation limitations.

Sammy Baugh Tops All Pro Grid League Punters

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 — Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins, one of the National football league's top punters year after year, is back at his old position—No. 1 in the league kicking standings.

Baugh displaced Jack Jacobs, Cleveland's rookie star, who had been setting the pace since the season opened. Baugh has a 46.4 average, and Jacobs 41.3.

Parker Hall of Cleveland continued to lead in punt returns with eight and Bill Dudley of Pittsburgh in kick-off returns with seven.

219 YARDS IN 29 TRIES

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15—Little Bill Miller of Clearfield, Pa., halfback on the University of Pennsylvania eleven, has averaged 7½ yards every time he carried the ball against Georgia Pre-Flight, Yale and Harvard. Statistics showed he gained 219 yards in the 29 times he was given the pigskin.

State Championships To Be Held in Columbus Aud This Year; Few Counties Cancel League Progra

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Gasoline rationing goes into effect Nov. 22, but it will cause little curtailment of Ohio's 1942-43 high school basketball program, Commissioner H. R. Townsend predicted today.

The chief of the state's scholastic sports setup said he thought the county, sectional, district and state tournaments would go through on schedule, with the finals in both Class A and Class B being played in Columbus.

"Although a final decision will not be made until the Nov. 21 meeting of the state board, I believe the state meet, with four finalists competing in each class, will be held in a single day at the Columbus Auditorium," Townsend said.

Private Cars Only

With the army having taken over the state fairgrounds, making the huge Coliseum unavailable, Ohio State university has shifted its home games to the downtown auditorium, which seats about 3,500.

"We'll probably play four tournament games in the afternoon, with the two championship events at night," Townsend said.

Last season 1155 high (239 in Class A and 916 B) played basketball in O 318 boys making up the squads. Townsend said pr that many would be in ac year, although several including Brown, Adams a ens, had decided to league play for the durat

"Transportation will be a private car proposition, send said, "but since mos schools will cancel their team contests, a single a be able to handle most of sity squads.

"I expect most of the to curtail their schedules eliminating home-and games, meeting each only once. In the cities the transportation proble acute, the entire city loo ules probably will be pla with some of the cut games being erased.

"Just what effect the tioning, with its attendan portation problem, will attendance is problematic pect it to show quite a dr the crowd which genera companies the visiting ch drop off."

Indiana Continues

Townsend said Indiana school principals, by a vot to 28, had ordered basketb tinued as usual in the state.

"Our basketball will be down a bit, probably," th missioner went on, "bu without doubt string along the best we can, just as In doing. Those 25,000 kids titled to play, and we're do everything possible t them to play."

Townsend said he had b tified by several schools th had cut their pre-tourney ules to six games, a drast from last year's program i a majority of the squads p least 18 in preparation championship events.

BIG 10 MAY HAVE TO PLAY FRESHMEN

18-19 Draft Makes Changes Necessary.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—The Western conference, which let down the bars on inter-collegiate freshman competition at its spring meeting, may be forced to permit use of freshmen on varsity football and other varsity teams in view of the proposed draft of 18-19 year olds.

Doug Mills, athletic director at the University of Illinois, said "When the time comes, I am sure the conference will let the bars all the way down for freshmen, particularly if it means keeping the program of physical fitness going."

Unless the government orders otherwise, college football will continue next year "even if our boys of 18 and 19 are drafted," John L. Griffith, conference commissioner, declared.

Intimating the probable use of freshmen in 1943, Griffith asserted: "But we will have to get along with boys under 18 or some 'old men' 24 years of age."

And even if the quality of the 1943 teams isn't as good, more important, Griffith said, was "the benefits derived by the boys in getting ready for military life."

"The quality may not be so bad at that," he added, pointing out that the current season has been a surprise. "Few of us thought there would be so many good teams," he said.

Many Changes Expected in Big League Baseball

Major League Moguls Confident Play Will Be Resumed Next Spring; Kids and Veterans To Hold Forth.

By JACK MAHON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—The youngest team ever to beat the most experienced team in World Series history, the amazing Cardinals, are champions of the baseball world—but baseball empire for ... in 1943?

There is no question that a lot of ... like to have the answer these days but after discussing the matter with several ... and business big-wigs ... only completed battles ... the Cards and the Yankees ... be inclined to think ... be a baseball season ...

... of those dictators on ... of the pond are in... enough to drop a ... combs on our shores ... be no sport of any ... until they do—and ... the chance of them doing ... humble opinion—we ... President will O. K. ... past-time ... the sport the green ... past year because he ... the necessity of an emo... for his war workers ... home front. Nothing lets ... off steam in a healthy ... better than baseball and ... game undoubtedly will ... reasonable facsimile of the original it will be better than no game at all.

Kids and Veterans

As Horace Stoneham, president of the N. Y. Giants, who finished third in the National League this season told the writer some weeks ago, we will have a game played by a handful of veterans, several kids who are below the present draft age limit and the balance to be composed of married players, now in the big show, who have wives and families dependent on them.

Of course, by the time April 1943 rolls around there may be a draft of not only the sons of '18 but of some married men, too. If that happens you can forget all about baseball and everything else.

Judge Landis, Commissioner of the game, and the presidents of both leagues, Ford Frick and Will Harridge say they are going to conduct "business as usual" and will continue to do so until they are advised otherwise.

Yanks Lose Many

Even if there is a league it will be hard to recognize the two champions. The N. Y. Yankees will be riddled in the next couple of months as Joe Gordon, Bill Dickey, Phil Rizzuto, George Selkirk, Buddy Hassett and several others leave for wartime assignments.

Gordon is going to the Air Corps as is Dickey; Rizzuto will enlist with the Coast Guard; Selkirk and Hassett expect to enter the Navy.

Johnny Beazley will probably be in the Marines by the time this reaches print and he is only one member of the youthful Cards who will be engaged in more serious game by the time the 1943 Spring training season rolls around.

The same thing will happen to every club in the league, creating a freak set-up, to be sure for next season, but, by the same token, making it a more even group of competitors.

MARION AREA YOUTHS STAR AT HEIDELBERG

Two youths from the Marion area among the stars of this year's Heidelberg college football team. They are Fenton Wolfe of Upper Sandusky, a backfield star, and Lou Cellini of Crestline, a guard. Other stars of this Student Prince eleven are Eddie Heglaw of Cleveland, Art Hossler of Tiffin, Bill McKenna of Lisbon and John Spezzaferro of Cleveland.

ALABAMA IS FAVORED TO BEAT TENNESSEE

Odds 8-5 That Tide Will Turn Back Vols.

By The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 15—Listen to the moans of rival coaches concerning the Alabama-Tennessee football game, and you will conclude that both these Southeastern conference powerhouse will be soundly beaten in their Saturday contest here.

Since that is not possible, some 24,000 fans will jam Legion Field, most of them willing to string along with the victor as the likely 1942 conference champ.

Alabama is heavily favored in betting, with Tennessee supporters being offered six points or 8 to 5 odds, chiefly because of that veteran Tide line.

At Knoxville, the Vols' coach John Barnhill says Alabama is two touchdowns better than Tennessee and "that old Alabama jinx is likely to crop up again" in a "devil of a game." He adds that his club "has been flatter than a flounder" in pre-game sessions and "won't have a ghost of a chance unless blocking improves."

Alabama's Frank Thomas gets in his rebuttal with the flat statement that his team's pass defense "is awful—just awful." Furthermore, he says his boys are not taking the game seriously, and if that pass defense doesn't pick up, it will be just too bad.

Both teams are unbeaten, but Tennessee opened the season with a surprising 0-0 tie with South Carolina.

WORK NETTED THREE WINS

By The Associated Press

FITZGERALD, Ga., Oct. 15—Pre-season "practice" as a harvest labor battalion is paying big dividends for the Fitzgerald High school football team. The squad, which hardened its muscles shaking peanuts and picking cotton, has won its first three games, scoring 11 touchdowns, and has yet to have its goal line crossed.

Blankets, carpets and some other textiles are being made in Sweden from horse hair collected from barber shops and hair dressing establishments, mixed with staple fiber.

Clevelander New Coach at Iowa State College

By The Associated Press

AMES, Ia., Oct. 15—August M. "Mike" Michalske, 37, former Ohioan and professional football player, is the new head football coach at Iowa State college.

Less than six weeks after he came here as line coach, Michalske was named yesterday to succeed Ray Dorais, who remains on the coaching staff. Dorais asked to be relieved as head coach after his team lost two of three games this season.

Michalske starred in three sports at West High school, Cleveland, and was on the track and football teams at Penn State. He played professional football with the New York Yankees and the Green Bay Packers.

SWEDE TRACK STARS MAY COME TO U. S.

Would Compete in Indoor Meets This Winter.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—One of these days three fast-stepping Swedes will jump out of an airplane to give indoor track competition the stimulus it will need to carry on through the coming winter season.

In spite of the difficulty of trans-Atlantic travel and of conducting negotiations at long range, Gunder Haegg, Sweden's record-breaker at distances from 1,500 to 5,000 meters, Arne Anderson, his leading rival, and Erik Lidman, a crack hurdler, are almost certain to race in the United States this winter.

"They're eager to come," Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, said today.

Planes are running from Stockholm to London and it is only necessary to get priorities for them on a trans-Atlantic plane.

Although practically all the "name" athletes who competed last winter are in the armed forces or otherwise unavailable, officials are going ahead with plans for all the major indoor meets this winter in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Cleveland.

Field Goal Wins For Findlay College Team

By The Associated Press

FINDLAY, O., Oct. 15—A 15-yard field goal by End Paul Shofer gave the margin of victory as Findlay college's gridders defeated the Wright-Patterson field force, 9 to 6 here last night. Fullback Frank Gray plunged for Findlay's touchdown in the second quarter. Charles Perry, quarterback, scored the safety by tackling a punter in the third.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Wants to be an athlete? Probably not, but danger Dan Ferris, the A.A.U. cross-country czar, has an idea that may get you out there not trying to show that you're a healthier specimen than Joe Zoner over in the next block. The plan is ample to arrange a series of tests in various sports such as track and field, basketball, etc., in each community with standards set low enough that almost anybody can get by the first elimination. They'll be arranged according to age groups. After you pass the test you're nominated and receive a suitable award, you can go to county, state and national tests. The main idea Dan explains, is to catch 'em when they're not looking and make 'em healthier.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — A measure directing President Roosevelt to stabilize all rents and to regulate hotel and rooming house rates comes up in congress for quick action today after a member told of being charged $15 a night by a Washington hotel. STOCKS HOLD BEARISH SIDE

Light Profit Cashing and Solomon War News Deject Market.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Stocks generally took the back road in today's market.

The war news from the Solomons was construed as a trifle bearish but further slipping tendencies were attributed mainly to light profit cashing on the lengthy upswing.

Commodities and bonds were mixed.

American Telephone was one of the weak spots. Down most of the time also were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, General Electric and Standard Oil (NJ).

American Telephone had to contend with the company's statement putting third quarter net at $2.34 a common share against $2.54 in the like 1941 period.

U. S. steel suffered an early minor chill as statistical quarters predicted that, in addition to heavy tax provisions, the concern would have to charge off a sizable amount for the wage boost of 5½ cents an hour granted by the war labor board in August retroactive to Feb. 15.

DRAFT

they might be finished by nightfall.

Advocates of the lower age limit heard in the opening sessions yesterday included Secretary of War Stimson and General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

Their case, in brief, was this: The United States must have the best army in the world. The average age of American combat forces is rising steadily, to a point no longer acceptable to the war department. Youngsters with drive, dash and bounce are needed —and the 18 to 20 year group has what the army wants.

Vote by Saturday

The house, hastening to act on President Roosevelt's suggestion to cut the age minimum hoped to reach a final roll call Saturday. The senate was not expected to vote on the selective service bill until next week.

To many senators and representatives, previously bewildered by conflicting reports, the most satisfying fruit of yesterday's hearings was definite information on the size of the army.

Stripping away secrecy, Secretary Stimson disclosed the goal was 7,500,000 men by Jan. 1, 1944, an increase of 3,250,000 above the 4,250,000 he said were now in service.

General Marshall emphasized that this force would be an integrated army of specialists designed to "keep the war out of the western hemisphere."

Hershey said even if the 18 year bill is passed speedily, about 100,000 married men will necessarily be called up next month, to meet previously established quotas.

Then, if the army keeps on calling for about 300,000 men a month, the 18 and 19 year olds will fill requirements until about April 1, 1943. For the next few months, the drafts would be about the same as at present. In the last quarter of 1942, Hershey said, it may be necessary to dip into the lists of married men with dependents.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Tongue Indicator

Ten years ago you could hear the then modern, up-to-date doctor making all kinds of fun of the older practitioner's reliance on the appearance of the tongue as an indication of general health. Today even the most modern graduate is by no means so likely to scoff.

We have learned much of the changes in the tongue in general bodily health and ill health. A prominent practitioner states: "The tongue is probably a better indicato, of internal disturbances than any other part of the oral mucosa." Our knowledge of changes in the appearance of the tongue is much more accurate than was that of the practitioner of thirty years ago.

We may say that the tongue has quite characteristic appearances in anemia, in many vitamin deficiencies, in thyroid conditions (either over-secretion or under-secretion), in generalized infections, drug eruptions and uremia. It even is possible in aviators to make a diagnosis of air embolism, or "bends" from flying in too high altitudes, by looking at the tongue.

"Raw, red tongue; raw, red stomach," is an old saying which probably has a good deal to it. It usually means also some degree or form of anemia. Atrophy of the tongue with smoothing out of the little roughnesses is also an extremely reliable sign of anemia.

The coated tongue is likely to indicate a poor state of digestion, because it means the tongue does not move around the mouth as much, which it would if the person were eating plenty of wholesome food. In fact, the coating of the tongue which the older practitioners relied on depends simply on the amount of moving the tongue is doing.

A coating on one half of the tongue occurs when half the tongue is immobilized by paralysis. Professor Middleton, of the University of Wisconsin, thinks there is a relation between the amount of coating on the tongue and the amount of acid in the gastric juice. Of a series of patients who had coated tongues, only 25 per cent had normal gastric juice.

The dryness or moisture of the tongue is, according to an eminent Boston practitioner, "the best evidence the doctor has to the state of hydration of the body."

The state of the tongue in nutritional deficiences, especially vitamin deficiencies, has been very carefully worked out. In fact in two forms of vitamin deficiency—riboflavin deficiency and pellegra—the principal changes appear in the tongue, and the diagnosis cannot be made unless they are present.

The tongue in pellagra is sore, red and swollen. The return to normal, with blanching of the tongue on the use of nicotinic acid, is dramatic.

In riboflavin deficiency the tongue is not so much fiery red as purple or magenta in color. And the papillae are flattened out, mushroom shaped, so that the tongue has a pebbled appearance.

Thus your modern diagnostician has even better reasons for saying "stick out your tongue" than his predecessor of 50 years ago.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

MY FATHER [illegible] longer than anyone, even the judicial examiner seemed to [illegible].

"Yes, I do," he [illegible] proof her appeal had [illegible] to you her about Mar[illegible] before we had warned her that the possible were sudden."

It was problem enough. How strong a hold [illegible] had the gangster [illegible] enough to make her try to get in contact with his associate [illegible] to defy us and [illegible]. What do you think?"

"I cannot tell you that yet," I said. "But I can assure you defiance has broken down and she realizes that we are her friends."

New Task for Madge

"We can prove Margaret," my father said. "that you are the only one who has any chance of finding out the secret she is guarding."

"I am afraid I can't do that yet," I said slowly. "Perhaps I can make her see that the surest way of having her secret revealed is to obey the instructions of that gangster by getting in touch with his associate."

"I have no doubt he made her believe that Marion's life depended upon her playing the game with him, but now she knows he is helpless and may listen to reason."

"But to induce her to tell the secret—an entirely personal one I am sure—which she shares with this gangster—that is another matter."

"I do not think it is wise for you even to try to get that out of her," my father said, to my great relief. "If you can eliminate the danger of her trying to get away and meet the other gangster, that is all I wish."

"And now, daughter, it is up to you. Where do you wish to talk to her, and when do you think she should go back to Westhampton? You will not have to go with her, as I shall need you here. Richard and Miss Whitlock can take her back by train."

All Have Sympathy

"I should like to talk to her first alone," I said, "without anyone else present. If she reacts as I think she will, I should like Dicky to take her back to the Underwood house to rest a few hours before she starts for Westhampton. Ronald is suffering the agonies of the damned about her, and Lillian will be intensely relieved to know that the much misjudged Carolyn, who will need all the sympathy she can get."

"I think your plan is a wise one," my father said, "and we will put it into effect immediately. When you go back in, send Miss Whitlock out to Richard and me."

As my father conducted me back to the sitting room, Dicky gave my hand an encouraging squeeze and as I put my hand on the door knob he whispered:

"Good luck, old dear!"

The Stars Say—

For Friday

Generally adverse conditions are to be noted in this day's planetary positions. In all matters it is admonished to "play safe." It will be necessary to be cautious at every move, to resolutely use discretion and sound judgment, shunning tempestuous and reckless acts and words. Superiors, employers and those in high places are likewise disposed to be inconsiderate.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by a series of difficulties, troubles and trials, unless they resolve to be discreet, vigilant and shun impetuous and rash conduct. In all relations in life this wariness may be demanded. Finances may need bolstering, new projects may be jeopardized and the private affairs subject to quarrels.

A child born on this day may be difficult and hard to get along with owing to its fiery and uncontrolled temper. Early training and discipline may avert misfortunes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. W., St. Louis, Mo.—Is it possible for something to be embedded in the eye for a year, and if so could it be seen with the ophthalmoscope? Can the eye be X-rayed like any other part of the body?

Answer: The ophthalmoscope will reveal foreign bodies in the eye. I never heard of a foreign body's remaining for any length of time in the eye without causing infection. The X-ray will show a foreign body, but the soft parts of the eye throw no shadows.

HORSE CAUSES DAMAGE

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Apparently tire and gasoline rationing will not eliminate the traffic problem in Fort Wayne. Twice in one week a horse used on a dairy route has run away, both times doing heavy damage to hapless automobiles hit by the dairy wagon as the horse galloped down the streets.
